O'Dwyer Campaign Fund Probe May Be Reopened, Tobey Says

Investigator Predicts Public Pressure
Will Force Extension Of Committee's Life

WASHINGTON, March 25. (AP)—Sen. Tobey (R-NH) predicted today that Senate crime probes will reopen their investigation of William O'Dwyer's campaign funds if their committee is allowed to continue its work.

And Tobey, ranking Republican member of the committee, said he thought public pressure would force an extension of the committee's life beyond next Saturday, the day it will go out of existence unless the Senate votes it more time.

Russia Spending Most On Weapons On Income Basis

WASHINGTON, March 25. (AP)—The State Department says that Russia still leads the world in the percentage of national income spent on arms.

The Western nations have been busily rearming; Russia has said it is using a "peace budget."

Yet, says the State Department, the new Soviet budget shows Russia is spending 20 per cent of its national income on arms compared with 15 per cent by the West.

Reception Given Atom Claim Irks President Peron

Isn't Interested
In What U. S. Thinks

BUENOS AIRES, Argentina, March 25. (AP)—President Juan D. Peron, obviously irked by skeptical comments from abroad on his government's announcement yesterday that Argentina had discovered a radically new and cheaper way to produce atomic energy, said today he is not interested in what the United States or any other country thinks.

Foreign reporters, however, were allowed to get a first-hand account of the discovery from Dr. Ronald Richter, the Austrian-born scientist who claims to have made it. The foreign press had been excluded from yesterday's official announcement.

Peron, writing in the authoritative and semi-official newspaper Democracia, said:

"I am not interested in what the United States or any other country in the world thinks."

Slaps Politicians Abroad
He said he made the startling announcement "not for other countries but for my country."

"Consequently," Peron said, "foreign newspapermen were not invited to the news conference. I wanted to speak to my people to whom I am responsible, thus avoiding the course followed by politicians and newspapers in other countries of the world who lie knowingly and direct their lies to their own people and abroad."

"They have not yet told the first truth," he added, "while I have not told the first lie."

Dr. Richter, now an Argentine citizen, told the reporters today he believed U. S. scientists are working on the same principle as his discovery and may have a similar discovery within their grasp.

Claim Meets Ridicule
(Numerous American and European scientists expressed everything from cautious surprise to outright ridicule of the Argentine claim. Some said it seemed merely an enlargement on predictions made in the last several years that the same reaction the sun uses to make heat—the same that would make a hydrogen bomb—may become a source of power.)

American scientists agreed it may be possible to produce this reaction—fusion of two atoms to make a new and larger atom on a tiny laboratory scale. But none held hopes this could be extended to produce power.)

Wanna Bet And Clean Up?
Just Use A Little Science

WASHINGTON, March 25. (AP)—It's practically no problem at all to make $80,000 a year betting on basketball, football and baseball games. All that's needed is a little science.

Mrs. Sydney Brodson, wife of the Milwaukee bettor who told a Senate crime investigating committee he gambled $1,000,000 annually, explained her husband's successes this way:

"He makes a science out of betting."

Brodson talked freely with the crime committee yesterday. And Mrs. Brodson was just as willing to talk as he was. She told Brian Bell,

Jr., reporter for the Washington Star, how Brodson goes about his business.

"Say George Mikan's wife is going to have a baby," she said. "If it were going to happen the week of February 18, Syd would figure that Mikan might have his mind on other things during games of that week and would take that into consideration."

Mikan is a star with the professional Minneapolis Lakers.

"He's not what you call a bookmaker," Mrs. Brodson said of her husband, "because he doesn't bet on both sides. When he doesn't figure a game out right, he loses his bet."

"SAFETY FEARED"—Anthony "Duke" Maffettore (above), a member of Murder, Inc., who saved his life by "singing" against his pals 10 years ago, is being hunted by police. Relatives expressed fear for his safety when he failed to appear for his trial on a theft charge while free on $5,000 bail.

Editor Of Seized Argentine Paper Safe In Uruguay

Refuses To Say How
He Escaped Dragnet

MONTEVIDEO, Uruguay, March 25. (AP)—Alberto Gainza Paz, editor-publisher of the seized Buenos Aires newspaper La Prensa and a fugitive from an Argentine congressional committee, has taken refuge in Uruguay. He said today he intends to remain, at least for the present, at his mother's ranch, 150 miles west of here.

He declined, in a telephone interview, to say how he escaped an Argentine police dragnet to reach the ranch last Friday and declined comment on the situation at his newspaper, long ranked as one of the world's greatest. About all he would say was that his health was excellent.

The Congress committee, appointed last week to take over and investigate the strike-bound independent newspaper, denounced Gainza Paz as a fugitive because police were unable to find him to serve a 15-day sentence for contempt of Congress. La Prensa never was friendly to President Juan D. Peron of Argentina.

Aaron Anchorena, his stepfather, said today Gainza Paz came here Friday, the day after the committee ordered his arrest. He said he did not know what means of travel the 52-year-old editor used, but that he came alone. Argentine police have been watching planes and river passenger vessels closely since last Thursday.

The editor of the big, 81-year-old newspaper disappeared last Thursday night just before the arrest order went out. He had been ordered to jail for sending a statement to Congress charging that seizure of his strike-bound paper violated Argentina's constitutional guarantee of freedom of the press.

The investigating committee had taken over the books, funds and files of La Prensa last Tuesday and had issued subpoenas for all of the paper's administrative officials and department heads to appear at the congressional building.

Big 4 Deputies Talks
Magnify Differences

PARIS, March 25. (AP)—Three weeks of East-West talks have magnified, not diminished, differences between Russia and the West over two of today's gravest international issues.

"Any other interpretation," said an official of one of the delegations, "is an ostrich-with-his-head-in-the-sand attitude."

The two issues are:

1. West rearmament, and particularly the rearmament of Western Germany.

2. The level of arms of the four great powers and those of a number of countries allied with them.

through the winding streets of the ancient city—now held by the Arab kingdom of Jordan—where Christ made His tortured journey to Calvary.

The pilgrims to the Holy Land passed through barbed wire entanglements—Jerusalem's present-day crown of thorns—past the armed guards of Israel and Jordan.

Pope Pius, standing on the central loggia of St. Peter's Basilica overlooking the huge square in Rome, made a fervent appeal before a throng of 100,000 for brotherly accord to free the world of lust and violence so people might live, and work in peace. His blessings to the world were broadcast and relayed over the radios of many lands.

Amid the roar and stench of war-torn Korea, soldiers of the United Nations gathered outside their muddy foxholes before crude wooden altars to hear the message of Easter hope from Catholic and Protestant chaplains.

President and Mrs. Truman and their daughter Margaret went to church in Washington, as did the heads of many governments in other capitals.

M'Arthur Bid Seen Designed To Start Talk

Red China May Also Worry About Coast

TOKYO, March 25. (AP)—The implication that Red China might be attacked, coupled with Gen. MacArthur's peace overture Saturday, apparently was designed by the United Nations commander to stimulate a little thought on the matter.

It appeared here as a calculated time bomb to cap the ninth month of a bitter Korean campaign that seems to be getting closer to the theoretical stalemate that MacArthur has predicted.

In his statement, he made a four-point outline of reasons why he considered the Communists have lost the chance to conquer South Korea. Then he added that if the United Nations decided on "an expansion of our military operations to his (the Chinese Red) coastal areas and interior bases," this "would doom Red China to the risk of imminent military collapse."

West Caught By Surprise
That statement certainly caught the western world by surprise and probably had the same effect on Peiping. This may have been one of its purposes. As far as is known here, it was not submitted beforehand to Washington.

The surprise can be expected to increase the amount of speculation about the statement. If that discussion reaches only a fraction of the words expended on the 38th parallel—which is regarded in Tokyo as meaningless—the military effect could be momentous.

What MacArthur apparently wants is to start Peiping worrying about its South China flank. Here is the background:

Red China was able to assemble the bulk of its trained military forces in Manchuria and to send them into Korea with relative security. The Third and Fourth Field Armies could be taken from South China because the U. S. Seventh Fleet was assigned to patrol the coast so long as Nationalist China refrained from attacking the mainland.

Can't Use Favorite Weapon
"We sent the Seventh Fleet out to protect Communist China," one officer here commented.

That policy has prevented MacArthur from using his favorite military weapon: A flank thrust or feint. Instead, he has had to plow straight up the Korean peninsula against a heavier Chinese line.

Now the substance of MacArthur's recent statements is that the Communists cannot win in Korea—and neither, under present circumstances, can the Allies.

Congress Lags; Probes Blamed

WASHINGTON, March 25. (AP)—The 82nd Congress, in the midst of a national emergency, has made one of the slowest starts in years on actual legislation, a checkup showed today.

President Truman's legislation program presented in his state of the union message Jan. 8 has been only slightly touched.

With three months of the session gone, some congressmen have expressed private belief that the main job of legislating is being slowed down because so many investigations were under way.

Majority Leader McFarland (D-Ariz.) recently told the Senate, as he pressed for action on the troops-to-Europe issue, that the Senate should "tend to its knitting." He included reference to the investigation activity.

The Senate has originated only nine bills that have cleared the legislative machinery. And seven of those are minor measures classed as "private relief."

The record of the House—now in recess until April 2—is about the same.

Her Last Birthday?
Little Beverly Green, who doesn't know she is suffering from cancer of both legs, was seven years old yesterday and her celebration was one of the happiest she has ever had. Hundreds of cards and many gifts came to her home in Ludlow, Mass. Doctors have advised her parents, Mr. and Mrs. Merton Green, that amputation might be hazardous. So they have decided to let her live as normal a life as possible without surgery. (Story at bottom of page)

Spain Is Ready To Sign Military Pact With U. S.

Offers Conditioned
On Arms Guarantee

WASHINGTON, March 25. (AP)—The Spanish government is reported ready to sign a direct military alliance with the United States modeled after the North Atlantic defense pact.

Generalissimo Franco, officials said, has informed American Ambassador Stanton Griffiths of this during informal talks in Madrid. The Spanish leader is also reported to have expressed willingness to consider a triangular defense alliance linking Spain, Portugal and the United States.

U. S. Must Guarantee Arms
Both these offers, however, were said to be conditioned on a firm American guarantee the United States will ship Spain enough arms to modernize its armed forces.

Diplomatic informants, who cannot be identified, told a reporter, Franco has advised Griffiths:

1. If the United States agreed to negotiate a military pact with Spain, the Spanish government would be willing to accept all commitments contained in the 12-nation North Atlantic defense pact.

2. Spain would be willing to consider an attack on any of the 12 member nations as an attack on Spain, and would be willing to provide full military assistance to the threatened country.

Would Defend West Europe
The Spanish government is prepared to move its army beyond the Pyrenees into Western Europe, if desired, to help repel such aggression in cooperation with North Atlantic pact armies.

The State Department has refused to confirm or deny any negotiations with Spain were in progress. It said last week our relations with Spain have entered a "new phase."

Truman To Call For Interamerican Unity

WASHINGTON, March 25. (AP)—President Truman goes before the Western Hemisphere's senior council tomorrow with an expected urgent call for interamerican unity in the face of Communist aggression.

His speech opening the consultative conference of foreign ministers of the American republics presumably will outline what cooperation the U. S. hopes for from its Latin neighbors. At the same time, diplomats look for him to say what help the U. S. can give to cushion the impact on Latin American economies of shortages caused by the U. S. defense effort.

Troop Debate Nears End

WASHINGTON, March 25. (AP)—The Senate winds up its troops-to-Europe debate this week with the virtual certainty that it will approve sending four U. S. divisions abroad but ask for a congressional voice in future assignments.

Holiday Death Toll
Nearing 200 Mark

(By The Associated Press)
At least 191 persons lost their lives in Easter weekend accidents.

Highway mishaps accounted for 135 of the deaths reported up to 10 p. m., EST, Sunday. Other accidents, such as fires and plane crashes, had caused 56 more.

Girl Marks 7th Birthday,
Unaware She Is Doomed

LUDLOW, Mass., March 25. (AP)—Blonde, blue-eyed Beverly Green awakened today to one of the happiest days she may ever know.

It was Easter Sunday and her seventh birthday.

She could understand that. What she couldn't account for were the hundreds of cards and many gifts that came from people she didn't even know.

But they knew Beverly. They had read of her courageous fight against cancer of both legs.

They had heard she was doomed—and they wanted to make what may be her last birthday a happy one.

Doctors have advised her parents,

Three American Warships To Join Search For Plane

SHANNON AIRPORT, Ireland, March 25. (AP)—The U. S. Navy sent three warships tonight to join one of the biggest air-sea searches in history for a U. S. Air Force Globemaster which disappeared in the Atlantic on Good Friday with 53 American airmen aboard.

Today about 35 planes, a British submarine, an ice breaker and two weather ships criss-crossed the search area, but found no trace of the Globemaster. Hope faded fast that any of those aboard would be found alive.

The aircraft carrier Coral Sea and two destroyers, en route from Norfolk, Va., to join the U. S. Sixth Fleet in the Mediterranean, were diverted to the Atlantic area 630 miles southwest of Shannon where the vast search is under way.

Economic Report Will Recommend Belt Tightening

Will Urge Heavier
Taxes, Pearson Says

By DREW PEARSON
One of the most important reports ever prepared by Congress will soon recommend the removal of farm support prices and a high tax program which may set American living standards for the next 10 to 20 years.

It is also proposed to abolish all federal subsidies to the states. The report has the support of both Sen. Joe McCarthy of Wyoming, Democrat, and Bob Taft, Ohio Republican, and has been adopted, so far confidentially, by the Joint Congressional Committee on the Economic Report.

Based On "Long Pull"
Though the report has not been made public, this column has obtained a copy. Its recommendations are based upon a "long pull" which is expected to strain the nation's economy for the next 10 to 20 years.

In blunt language, the report urges: "It is essential that new and heavier taxes be promptly assessed. Increases in withholding rates and corporation profits taxes are vital now. They are necessary to put a damper on price increases which are steadily gnawing away at civilian income and government appropriations."

The report adds, however, that "people with incomes of $4,000 a year or less are already overburdened by the increasing cost of living and the present level of taxes. The government cannot look to them for any substantial new revenue."

Watch The Military
Warning against writing a blank check for the military, the report declares: "In a long period of heavy defense expenditures, there does not exist the urgency to spend first and then look around and see how much the government will need to borrow in order to pay its bills. . . . The defense garment should be cut to the revenue cloth. . . . Military hoarding of manpower and materials must be kept to a minimum."

The report also warns that "deficit spending cannot be contemplated even for the current defense program, unless we are willing to invite the crack-up of the American system. . . . Congress, short of all-out war, should make no military appropriation unless and until adequate tax revenues are definitely in sight."

Negro's Newly-Bought
Home Is Dynamited

ATLANTA, March 25. (AP)—A house purchased by a negro in a former all white area of Atlanta was blasted by dynamite last night, breaking several windows.

Radio Patrolmen C. Chafin and J. F. Johnson said the residence recently was bought by Scott Brooks, a negro, who was in the process of moving in. However, no one was living in the house at the time of the explosion.

Police said the area has been a scene of racial tension for several months, as negro residential areas expanded into sections formerly occupied only by white families.

They have not told her that she has cancer, or that doctors have given up hope of curing her.

Two days before the child's birthday, friends and neighbors held an auction for her financially straitened parents. They realized $866.

SECRETS OF CHARM

by JOHN ROBERT POWERS

AFTER you have attracted favorable attention to yourself by your well-groomed outward appearance, how long can you hold it?

Pleasing the eyes of your public is only a small part of achieving personal success. Your social magnetism depends on how well-rounded is your charm. Although youth seldom believes this statement, no mature woman seriously doubts it.

Personality Inspection
You probably look into your mirror a dozen times a day to check your looks. But how often do you make a critical inspection of your personality? You should evaluate yours frequently to estimate how fascinating you are as a conversationalist, how good as a listener, and how sympathetic as a companion.

The first requisite is at least a nodding acquaintance with what is going on in the world, and you can chalk one up for your appeal if you have it. But without it, you can't expect people to look forward to seeing you again and again. . . . it is evidence that you are too self-centered to be interesting.

What you must have to be interesting is a storehouse of knowledge about the subjects and activities that concern other people. As a check on how well-stocked yours is at present, answer the following questions "yes" or "no".

1. Did you finish reading a book within the last four weeks? 2. Can you list the names of three books, with their authors, that have been popular in the last six months? 3. Do you read the news (world and national, as well as local) and the editorials in one newspaper each day? 4. Can you name two contemporary painters and poets of any nationality? 5. Do you dislike modern music? 6. Do you make it your business to read the fashion pages frequently and at least one fashion or woman's magazine each month? 7. Have you kept abreast of the outstanding phases of modern science?

Well-Rounded
Answers: All should be yes, with the exception of number five, which should be answered, "I don't know," unless you have thoroughly investigated the subject. If three of your answers are at variance, watch out! Your personality is in danger of being sloughed off by others with a shrug. To shape your personality attractively, you can readily see it's not a matter of what you take off but what you add on that counts!

Lawyers Endorse Judge Wright In Bedford

BEDFORD, Pa., March 25 — Unanimous endorsement by the Bedford County Bar Association has been offered Judge J. Colvin Wright for a second term on the Bedford County bench.

The endorsement marks the first time in 20 years that the association has been unanimous in its selection. Attorney Richard C. Snyder presented the resolution calling for the endorsement. The motion was immediately approved and seconded by D. Cress Reiley, dean of the county bar, and Harry C. James, a former judge.

The bar's unanimous endorsement practically assures Judge Wright of having no opposition in the primary or general elections later this year. Judge Wright first was elected in 1941 after winning the endorsement of both the Democrat and Republican parties in Bedford county.

Bedford and Huntingdon counties, prior to 1931, were part of one judicial district with associate judges on the bench. Bedford county's first judge, B. F. Madore, was appointed by former Gov. Gifford Pinchot. Judge James was the first jurist to be named to the bench by popular vote.

Mirror Of Your Mind

By LAWRENCE GOULD, Consulting Psychologist

Does loving your mother make you patriotic?

Answer: This is the suggestion of an eminent psychiatrist and certainly love of your country is not inborn in the sense that love for yourself is. It seems likely that the friendlier and more secure a baby finds the home that he grows up in, the more he'll tend, as he grows older, to widen his devotion to it so as to include his larger home or country. Conversely, it is doubtful where children of unhappy homes are likely to be patriotic. It is interesting that in "The Traitor," Mr. William L. Shirer depicts his central character as the child of a domineering and unloving mother.

May a doctor make his patients ill? Answer: Yes, though unintentionally, says Dr. Franklin G. Ebaugh, Professor of Psychiatry at the University of Colorado. A doctor may cause an illness or make an existing illness worse by the way in which he examines patients, his manner toward them or his attitude toward their symptoms. This will be because he does not recognize the emotional factors in illness, cannot treat minor emotional disorders if he recognizes them, or fails to realize how large a part his own feelings and behavior play in both the cause and the cure of disease.

(Copyright, 1951, King Features Syndicate, Inc.)

Can any ailment be "completely cured"? Answer: Probably not in the sense that your condition will be the same as if you had never been ill. Everything that happens has enduring consequences one way or the other, and doctors today prefer to use words like "arrested" or "remitted" rather than "cured." But in many cases, overcoming physical or mental illness leaves you better off than before—you may have developed an immunity which protects you from further infection, or may have developed a degree of insight (self-knowledge) which you would not otherwise have had a chance to gain.

Tammany Grows Weaker

Testimony before the Kefauver crime investigating committee has revealed not only the influence of professional gamblers in Tammany Hall but also the political weakness of Tammany in recent years. Former Mayor O'Dwyer of New York City explained that when he took office he starved Tammany of patronage in order to "clean it up." He testified further that he had succeeded in replacing the Tammany leader, E. V. Loughlin, by the mayor's own choice, Frank J. Sponsop.

So O'Dwyer could hardly have been under obligation to Tammany for his nomination and election in 1945. His election was a walkover; he received 56 per cent of the votes to 21 per cent for the Republican-Liberal Party candidate and 20 per cent for an independent candidate. In 1949 the Irish-born former policeman was re-elected with less of a walkover. In 1941 he had been defeated by a slim margin by Mayor LaGuardia.

It has been almost 20 years since Tammany has been able to nominate and elect its own man as mayor of New York. It won in 1932 with John P. O'Brien, but in 1933 O'Brien ran third in an election won by LaGuardia. Last year Tammany withheld its nomination from Impellitteri, only to see him win the election as an independent candidate.

Tammany Hall is the Democratic organization only in the Manhattan borough of New York City, and one reason for its political eclipse has been the shift of population within the city. Forty years ago Manhattan had almost one-half of the city's inhabitants, with 45 per cent more than Kings (Brooklyn), five times more than the Bronx, eight times more than Queens (Long Island City). Today Manhattan has less than one-fourth the population of the city—Brooklyn has many more inhabitants, Queens and the Bronx almost as many. Tammany is now in no position to dictate to the party organizations in the other boroughs.

Another reason for the decline of Tammany has been its inability to produce a leader with personal qualities of domination. The last of the old Tammany "bosses" to rule with an iron hand was Charles J. Murphy, the patron of "Al" Smith. Murphy's control over 22 years was as absolute as had been that of his predecessors—Richard Croker, for 12 years; "Honest John" Kelly, for 14 years; "Boss" Tweed, for nine years. Tweed went to jail on conviction of graft and died there.

After Murphy died in 1924, the Hall fell under weaker leaders, who had shorter tenures. Some of these wielded no power over certain of the district leaders. Today it is doubtful if many New Yorkers know that Carmine DeSapio is the present leader of Tammany, whereas many or most know that "Ed" Flynn controls the Democratic organization in the Bronx.

Tammany suffered also from paucity of federal patronage under President Roosevelt. FDR had been an anti-Tammany force as a young member of the state legislature. As governor, he held hearings on an application that he use his power to remove James J. Walker as mayor of New York City for malfeasance and misfeasance in office. The questioning of Mayor Walker by Gov. Roosevelt in 1932 produced as widespread public interest as the questioning of former Mayor O'Dwyer by the Kefauver committee.

While the hearings on Walker were being held, he resigned and went to Europe. That injured Tammany, for "Jimmy" had been its idol. It suffered another blow in 1939, when District Attorney, now Governor, Dewey had James J. Hines, powerful Tammany district leader, convicted and jailed for complicity in illegal gambling in New York City.

Guest With Silver

If the forthcoming state visit of President Vincent Auriol of France fails to enliven the national scene with touches of supreme French elegance, it will not be because of lack of planning and equipment.

When the French liner Liberte docked at New York the other morning, aboard were cases of silver and champagne, under the charge of George Bouchet, chief of the French detective force which will assist American authorities in guarding the French President.

The silver and the wine are to be offered, under French auspices, at receptions in honor of Mr. Auriol. A former labor organizer, long a socialist member of the Chamber of Deputies, Mr. Auriol now lives in the semi-regal surroundings of the Elysee Palace, a once royal dwelling now the French White House.

The U. S. government can be elegant, when it pleases, even if a Washington hotel must be used for state banquets while the White House is being rebuilt. None but a French guest would think of bringing his own silver with him.

But it was France that invented and still specializes in protocol, which is an esoteric mode of precedence and conduct for the entertainments of all governments in the world, including that of the Soviet Union.

Who Has The Pennies?

Mrs. Nellie Tayloe Ross, director of the United States Mint, wants the nation's hoarded pennies taken out of piggy banks, sugar bowls and bureau drawers and put in circulation. This, Mrs. Ross says, would make it unnecessary for the Treasury to mint more pennies, thus saving scarce copper.

The piggy bank reference is somewhat puzzling. Is there anywhere a kid so ignorant of fiscal facts that he lets a parsimonious aunt or uncle palm a penny off on him? Small Teddy and little Ann know all they need to know about inflation. They save nickels and dimes, quarters and halves, now.

Adults, however, hold the penny in higher esteem. It is still an important medium of exchange. In combination with the nickel, dime and quarter, it is still a useful medium of exchange. Mrs. Ross reports more than 857,000,000 1-cent pieces have been coined since last June, and more are needed.

The sneers the penny gets should really be turned on the nickel. That coin has shrunk a lot, too. In shrinking it has given new usefulness to the penny. The nickel's job has just about been taken over by the dime. That seems to be washing up the nickel, but the penny will go rolling on. It's a nuisance, but its usefulness has not diminished.

Editorial Paragraphs

The automobile becomes more elegant every year, and more useful some years. But when it is going to come equipped, perhaps as an optional "extra," with a collapsible parking space?

It might as well be admitted. Most husbands are made to order—whether they like it or not.

Control Of House Dust

MANY allergic individuals are sensitive to house dust. Nasal congestion, wheezing, and sneezing develop whenever these particles are inhaled. Some persons are unable to tolerate the smallest amount; others are bothered only when the room is being swept or dusted.

House dust is a fine grayish powder formed by the deterioration of materials that are incorporated into furniture, clothing, and other household articles. Most of it stems from non-living organic matter derived from bedding, furniture, draperies, carpets, and similar fabrics. Into this mass fall bits of sand, ashes, linen, aging feathers, animal dander, and dry bacteria. The germs come from the secretions expelled into the air by the occupants of the room thru coughing, sneezing, and talking. Molds and kopak also may be present in dust; in addition, these substances in themselves are frequent culprits in producing asthma and nasal allergy.

Because dust is so important as an irritant, allergists have formulated many rules to control the condition in the home. Dr. Albert H. Unger recommends that particles be kept at a minimum in the bedroom by covering the floor with linoleum or leaving it bare. Rugs may be used if they are washed at frequent intervals. Plastic draperies are substituted for those made of cloth and, if curtains are hung, they must be laundered every two weeks.

All beds should have rubber mattresses and pillows. An alternative is to cover or enclose the pillow or mattress in a plastic or rubber bag. This innovation frequently spells the difference between sleeping in comfort or wheezing all night. An acquaintance of mine always encountered congestion of the left nostril whenever he slept on the left side, and of the right nostril when he slept on that side. His wife purchased a pillow of sponge rubber and since then he never has been bothered. Whether his difficulty was due to the dust or to the feathers he did not know because he would never take the time for skin tests. This example is cited to demonstrate it is the little things that count.

For allergic individuals whose symptoms are more severe, it may be necessary to disengage with upholstered furniture. Dusting with a dry cloth is taboo; it should be done with a dampened or oiled rag. The same can be said of sweeping; a wet mop is preferred. But a good vacuum cleaner with all attachments is best; this gadget is indispensable in a home where allergens abound. There are many machines on the market to remove dust from the air and one of the latest is an electronic device designed to attract any dust particles that come within its range. While this machine is efficient, it is hard on the pocketbook.

Rug pads also are a source of annoyance to individuals who are sensitive to dust. Even the best vacuum cleaner cannot collect and clean through a rug and its pad too.

A rubber pad or doing away with rugs entirely and substituting linoleums, is most satisfactory. The use of rubber in furniture is recommended and the bottom of chairs and divans should be boarded up with linoleum to discourage dust seepage. When drastic changes in the home cannot be made, the dust particles may be held down through the use of various chemicals and oils available for this purpose.

CALLOUSED SOLES

M. J. writes: After removing calluses from the soles of my feet, they regrow in 36 to 48 hours. Would it be better if I scraped them every day?

REPLY
This might help but a better plan would be to attempt to remove the pressure causing the calluses. These lesions develop over areas where the skin is irritated or subjected to unusual pressure. Tight shoes and fallen arches are common offenders along this line.

INGROWN TOE NAIL

Mrs. R. writes: Is pulling out the nail the best treatment for ingrown toe nail?

REPLY
No. This procedure offers temporary relief but when the nail grows the structure assumes its deformed contours. Send a stamped, self-addressed envelope for leaflet on ingrown toe nail.

NUMB FINGERS

Mrs. K. writes: What is the treatment for scapular anticus syndrome? My doctor says this condition is causing numbness of my fingers.

REPLY
Surgery is the only treatment. In this procedure the muscle is severed to relieve pressure on the nerves and blood vessels of the neck.

ACTH IN LUPUS

B. R. writes: Is ACTH of any value in treating the facial growths of lupus erythematosus?

REPLY
The remedy is worth trying because good results have been reported. The condition may return, however, when the drug is discontinued.

Back In Business At The Old Stand

DREW PEARSON on—

The Washington Merry-Go-Round

Dissension In Kremlin May Prevent War This Year; Russia Faced With Unrest In Satellite Countries; Eisenhower Supplies Confidence To Europe

(Ed. Note—Drew Pearson has just returned to the United States. The following column, diagnosing the question of "will there be war?" was written just before he returned.)

LONDON—The most important question I came to Europe to answer is: Will there be war this year? Will Moscow strike before Western Europe can be rearmaged?

It still remains extremely difficult to answer that question, but my personal hunch is there will not be war.

The word "hunch" is used advisedly. For all the ingredients are on hand to make war. Moscow has ample troops on the Yugoslav border to attack overnight. Moscow also has ample troops in Germany plus heavy concentrations of the old Nazi Luftwaffe, plus important reserves of tanks and repair shops to throw us out of Germany and march to the English Channel in a couple of weeks.

Furthermore, Russian diplomats at the Paris big four discussions could be talking as Admiral Nomura talked just before Pearl Harbor, for the purpose of lulling us into a false sense of security.

That is why I used the word "hunch." For, all you can arrive at after traveling through Europe is a hunch. Perhaps also my opinion is influenced by a certain amount of personal optimism and the devout hope that there will be no war. It happens that, on Dec. 5, 1941, I predicted in a speech at Dayton, Ohio, that we would have war with Japan within two weeks. And I could be just as wrong now as I was right then.

However, here are my reasons for believing that Russia will not strike this year (and in my opinion if she does not strike this year, she will have much greater difficulty in waging war after that):

Then Miss Shallcross, who is economist at the Institute of Paper Chemistry, says:

"... Even the 'government planning' during the 1930's and since, which has created more problems (especially deficit financing) than it has solved, has not dispelled the strong feeling, born of the depression, that the government should guarantee certain economic rights, even at the expense of transforming the economy and eliminating economic freedom. And, moreover, this attitude seems to prevail despite a new critical attitude toward collectivist economic planning in the Soviet Union brought about by the postwar beligerent and openly imperialistic Soviet policy."

"Two reasons may be given for this seeming paradox. One is the insecurity caused by the last war and the fear of another. The second is that many government officials have found it politically expedient to promise all sorts of things that could only be delivered, even in a small degree, by having complete power over the economy. Those who are asking for state power to control the economy (or, as they say, to establish the welfare state) are doing so paradoxically in the interests of saving free enterprise."

But why should the state not have complete control over the economy?

In a word, can we have half-socialism or 24 per cent socialism without becoming a socialized society? Actually, it cannot be done no matter who tries it and so far as the people are (Continued on Page 9, Col. 8)

Matter Of Fact

By STEWART ALSOP

Man Hunt

WASHINGTON
THE STORY of the last days of Vlado Clementis, former Foreign Minister of Czechoslovakia, before he was arrested as a traitor can now be told. It is a revealing story, for it demonstrates dramatically the extent to which hidden terror and the fear of sudden betrayal now pervade the whole Soviet empire.

Clementis has been a fanatical Communist all his life. Yet in the course of his Communist career he made one mistake which has now proved his undoing. For a few months he was a "premature anti-fascist," making anti-Nazi broadcasts from London to his own country, while Hitler and Stalin were still formally allied. This was deviationism, and the Kremlin never forgave.

Late in 1949, while Clementis was in this country representing his government at the United Nations, reliable reports that the Kremlin had demanded the liquidation of Clementis were published in this space. Clementis denounced these reports as lies, and was photographed in arm in arm with smiling Andrei Vishinsky. Clementis was in fact wholly aware that he was in danger. But Czech President Klement Gottwald, a close personal friend of long standing, had sent his wife to New York with assurances that if Clementis returned he would be spared. Trusting his friend's word, Clementis made the fateful decision to go back.

Planned To Escape

He was soon dismissed as Foreign Minister, which he must have expected. But he was not arrested. He was installed instead in a minor job as economic adviser in the state bank. Yet as the Kremlin, acting through such trusted agents as party secretary Rudolf Slansky, tightened its grip on Czechoslovakia, the protection of Gottwald became increasingly worthless. The Kremlin is never satisfied with half measures, and early this year word came to Clementis that he had been marked for the slaughter. He could save himself only by escaping.

He and his brother-in-law, Dr. Daniel Okali, Slovak Minister of the Interior and also a lifelong Communist, hatched a plan. Ostensibly to discuss the export of wood pulp with Bratislava, the Slovak capital. Okali had a government plane at his disposal, and in this the two men would escape to Western Germany, with Tito's Belgrade their ultimate objective.

At the last moment, Clementis became aware that he was being watched. He changed his plan, evading the secret police and taking a slow train for Bratislava, instead of the plane. The train stopped over for some hours at Brno, near the Czech border, and at Brno Clementis must have felt the noose tightening around his neck. For while waiting to continue his journey, Clementis got word that Okali had been arrested as a traitor in Bratislava.

When he heard this, Clementis must have known that he had become the object of a manhunt. At first, he tried to cross the border on his own, with the intention of making his way through the Bohemian forest into Soviet Austria, and thence into Vienna. But the net was drawn too tight, and to cross the border without help proved impossible. Evidently, Clementis decided to play a last desperate card. The local Communist leader in the smaller town of Znam, near the border, was an old comrade in arms from the pre-war days. Perhaps he might help.

He reached Znam undetected, and saw his friend in his office in the morning. His friend stood by him, and told him to return at 5 o'clock that afternoon, when arrangements for his escape into East Austria would be complete. Clementis passed the intervening hours at a motion picture, and returned promptly at 5 o'clock.

Greeted By Police

This was the end of the trail. His Communist friend had been watched and had already been arrested. In his office, Clementis found the secret police waiting for him. President Gottwald, all real power now stripped from him, promptly denounced Clementis, to whom he had been closer than any other man, as a traitor and a spy, in order to save his own skin. Thus the end came for Vlado Clementis, who is dead now or as good as dead.

This story, which is certainly accurate in outline, of the last days of the former Czech Foreign Minister, is worth pondering, especially now when it so often seems that moral decay has overtaken the American republic. The American system may produce its Costellos, but at least it produces no spectacle comparable to that of a man who had been Foreign Minister only a few months before zigzagging frantically, like a rabbit pursued by hounds, in a desperate effort to escape his country. Surely the endless bloody fermenting out of old Communist after old Communist, which has been going on for so many years now argues a terrible weakness in the power structure of the Communist world. Surely the fear which Clementis must have felt as he pursued closed in on him must be felt also, and always, by his pursuers, whose turn is so likely to come next.

Business And Colleges

By ROGER W. BABSON

BABSON PARK, Fla., March 25—Closer cooperation between business and education may save our private institutions of higher learning and, at the same time, bring about increased profits for business. Education and business, working hand in hand, can also make themselves of greater value to the country in this national emergency.

Business Needs The College

One of the soundest ways to preserve private enterprise is to give financial aid to young and needy potential business executives studying in colleges which are especially appreciative of American business and sympathetic to its problems. Most professional colleges of business have this point of view. Young men therein educated are of especial value to business. They not only learn specialized techniques; but they also acquire a sound philosophy of American business. Business needs such young men.

Business also needs the brains and research facilities of the colleges. Many small and middle-sized companies cannot hope, by themselves, to keep pace with the research of big business; but by pooling their efforts with the colleges, their usefulness and profits can be increased. Business provides the funds; the colleges provide the research laboratories.

The College Needs Business

In these times of partial mobilization and declining enrollments, the college needs the help of business. Education is the bulwark of democracy. If America is to win the battle of ideologies, it will be by brains—not by brawn. The survival of private enterprise is, therefore, closely tied to the survival of our educational institutions. To survive, our colleges greatly need the financial support of business, which should feel obligated to help keep our system of higher education strong.

Colleges today are in a precarious position. They are victims of war-time economy. With decreased income from tuitions and inflated costs of operation, plus being buildings-and-land poor, with income from endowments inadequate, colleges are having rough going. Some are already operating in the red. Many more will lose money next year. A cooperative venture between business and education is, therefore, an intelligent solution to many of the problems of both groups.

Ways of Cooperation

Many colleges are already doing a vast amount of technical research for government and business: Boston University in optics; Georgia Tech in aeronautical engineering; University of California in geodesy; University of Wisconsin in naval research; Stanford in radio; Michigan State in fuel; Massachusetts Institute of Technology in manufacturing; Babson Institute in marketing—to mention a very few.

Other possible areas of cooperation are workshop seminars for top management. These are custom-built courses of short duration to meet specific industry and company problems in consumer research, marketing, advertising, product development, taxes, etc. Refresher group conferences for foremen, sales managers, bankers, and accountants can do much to keep both business and education on their toes.

Financial Engineering

Yale University has pointed the way in research in labor relations with its Labor-Management Center. Whole new areas are practically unexplored—such as atomic warfare, business decentralization and traffic problems. Other areas are job valuation, job satisfaction, corporation conduct, public relations, organizational communication, corporate finance and statistics.

The subject of taxes alone offers rich possibilities for business-college cooperation. Taxes have become far greater than a legal question. We have in the U.S.A. one of the strongest potential working teams any country has ever known: the research facilities of education and the wealth facilities of business. In harness together they can become invaluable helpmates. Now is the time to build our team and keep our country strong.

Try And Stop Me

By BENNETT CERF

"All those who want to go to heaven will kindly rise," said the Minister of a small Maine congregation—possibly to make sure everybody was awake. All but one man in a pew near the rear rose promptly. "Hm-m-m," mused the minister. "Now anybody who wants to go to Hades will please stand up." The congregation tittered and stole a look at the member who had remained seated earlier. Again he didn't move.

Brother Caldwell, that you want to go neither to heaven nor the other place?" "That's it exactly," was the reply. "I like it right here."

Ma Ingram, who lived in a little cabin in the Ozarks, was sometimes asked by passing motorists how far it was to the nearest town. She liked to answer, "Pa figures it's about twelve miles that and fourteen back. That's on account of him walkin' straighter 'n' comin'."

By JOHN CROSBY

Crime Without Passion

ADIES and gentlemen, we take you now behind the scenes of a police headquarters in a great American city where, under the cold, glaring lights will pass before us the innocent, the vagrant, the thief, the murderer. This is the line-up. The CBS program "The Line-Up" (CBS 10 p. m. EST Tuesdays) opens at 10 p. m. quietly, and continues in the same general mood, quietly, to document criminality as the sordid, degrading business it is. You won't encounter any master criminals on this show; the crimes are major ones—murder, usually—but the reasons for their commission are petty, mean and usually stupid.

John Crosby Like NBC's highly regarded "Dragnet," of which "The Line-Up" seems an obvious imitation, the emphasis here is not on the commission of the crime, not even on the solution of crime, but on the protection of the community from the weak, the vicious, the misfits.

A body has been found. Into the morgue with its well-oiled slabs, which operate like drawers in a file cabinet, come the relatives, to identify, to sob, sometimes to scream—none of it very pretty. Then the hoodlums are paraded under the white lights before the victims or the survivors as the sergeant raps: "Please be prompt with your questions or identifications. When the prisoners leave here they are sent to the washroom and dressed back into their jail clothes. It makes it quite difficult to bring them back after they leave here. The questions I ask these suspects are merely to get a natural tone of voice. Do not pay too much attention to their answers as they often lie."

The prisoners shuffle by, furtive or cringing or defiant—sometimes all three at once. "What's your business, Haddock?" asks the Sergeant. "I play the stock market," says the thug easily.

"Were you alone when you were arrested?" "I was with the guy I was stickin' up."

"Was anybody arrested with you?" "I was pulling the job. We weren't stickin' each other up."

"Any weapons, Max?" "You think he was giving me his wallet because I was pointing my thumb at him?"

When the line-up falls to flush the culprit, the case goes into the hands of two soft-spoken, knowledgeable and very tough detectives named Ben and Matt, who employ ordinary, methodical police techniques to run down their man. Some of the criminals are professionals. Others are amateurs, first-timers, who get in over their heads and then you hear some wonderfully florid dialogue. "I didn't mean to kill Godfrey. I waited on the road. He picked me up. I didn't mean to kill him. All that planning . . . I guess it's just my fault. I didn't mean to kill Godfrey. Things like that just happen I guess, but I didn't mean to."

Much of the dialogue is earthy, vividly descriptive and at the same time very real. A witness describing a killing, for example: "Ain't much to tell. Man got out of the car—this was after the shot, of course—he got out and grabbed a man's legs and dragged him out of the car, bumpy-bump. He swung him off the road so hard he rolled down the hill. Over and over—I just stayed there and watched him roll over and over."

As usual, CBS has surrounded these quiet crime dramas with magnificent production values and cast them with actors who are almost documentary in their restraint. While sacrificing most of the obvious whodunit tricks, the writer more than makes up for it by creating real people, whether they be cops, crooks or victims. One of the recent corpses, for example, was a trumpet player, a little gem of a character, almost inarticulate except on his horn, where he was mournfully eloquent.

And when his killer was finally trapped, a fellow musician told the murderer sadly: "If you had Willie killed, you shouldn't a-oughta done it. He played too great, Mr. Kingston. You only hear playing like that maybe once in a lifetime. You shouldn't a-killed him. You should a let him play."

"The Line-Up" is sponsored by the Army and the Air Force Recruiting Service, and while I'm a little puzzled that the two services should pick a crime program to plug for enlistments, I must admit they have picked an awfully good one.

While sacrificing most of the obvious whodunit tricks, the writer more than makes up for it by creating real people, whether they be cops, crooks or victims. One of the recent corpses, for example, was a trumpet player, a little gem of a character, almost inarticulate except on his horn, where he was mournfully eloquent.

And when his killer was finally trapped, a fellow musician told the murderer sadly: "If you had Willie killed, you shouldn't a-oughta done it. He played too great, Mr. Kingston. You only hear playing like that maybe once in a lifetime. You shouldn't a-killed him. You should a let him play."

"The Line-Up" is sponsored by the Army and the Air Force Recruiting Service, and while I'm a little puzzled that the two services should pick a crime program to plug for enlistments, I must admit they have picked an awfully good one.

"The Authority on Authorities"
ONE NEGATIVE ASPECT
BESIDES the many favorable features connected with an opening bid of No Trump, when holding the sound cards for it, there is one important negative aspect. That is, the information it gives to the other side about your distribution. A fine card-reader is likely to figure out almost exactly what you hold, and therefore what is held by the other hidden hand, especially after looking at the dummy and his own hand.

When the line-up falls to flush the culprit, the case goes into the hands of two soft-spoken, knowledgeable and very tough detectives named Ben and Matt, who employ ordinary, methodical police techniques to run down their man. Some of the criminals are professionals. Others are amateurs, first-timers, who get in over their heads and then you hear some wonderfully florid dialogue. "I didn't mean to kill Godfrey. I waited on the road. He picked me up. I didn't mean to kill him. All that planning . . . I guess it's just my fault. I didn't mean to kill Godfrey. Things like that just happen I guess, but I didn't mean to."

Much of the dialogue is earthy, vividly descriptive and at the same time very real. A witness describing a killing, for example: "Ain't much to tell. Man got out of the car—this was after the shot, of course—he got out and grabbed a man's legs and dragged him out of the car, bumpy-bump. He swung him off the road so hard he rolled down the hill. Over and over—I just stayed there and watched him roll over and over."

As usual, CBS has surrounded these quiet crime dramas with magnificent production values and cast them with actors who are almost documentary in their restraint. While sacrificing most of the obvious whodunit tricks, the writer more than makes up for it by creating real people, whether they be cops, crooks or victims. Fine Hurling Could Make Bostons Factor In 1951 Race

EDITOR'S NOTE—This is the 11th in a series of articles on the 1951 prospects of the major league baseball teams.

By WALTER L. JOHNS
Central Press Sports Editor
BRADENTON, Fla. — When you talk to Billy Southworth, very capable manager of the Boston Braves, you are not led to believe that the Beantown entry, fourth last year, is a pennant contender this season.

However, other officials in camp (and perhaps Billy, too) believe they will be in it all the way this year.

Any club which has three pitchers of the collective caliber of

Johnny Sain, Warren Spahn and Vernon Bickford, who won 60 games last year, must be reckoned with, for pitching is the key to all pennant hopes.

And the Braves, sorely in need of a fourth starter last year, have come up with two helpers whom Billy talks about as being the difference.

The two, either one of which may be that fourth regular fliker, are big Jim Wilson, a righthander who won 24 games for Seattle in the Pacific Coast league last year, and Matt Surkont, an oldster once in the St. Louis Cardinals' chain who won 18 for Sacramento and then turned in five victories for the Braves at the end of the season.

Billy the Kid is looking over some other hill help, too. Best of these may be Art Fowler, 18-12 with

Atlanta last year, and Charley Gorin, a University of Texas star who joined Atlanta late last season and won nine while losing but one.

"We're better than we were last year at this time," Billy says.

"We have two more pitchers who we think will help and we've added another catcher who will help us out both behind the plate and at bat."

Before we go any further, we might introduce you to the catcher he is talking about. He is Edward (Ebbie) St. Claire, a 220-pound guy who has hands like hams, to reiterate an old expression.

To accent the size of this fellow's hands a photographer friend of ours, with big mitts, almost lost those same mitts in a handshake with St. Claire.

"That fellow," says Billy the Kid in talking about the rookie catcher, "has drawn more favorable comment in camp than any other player."

St. Claire should help the catching, for Del Crandall, who was No. 2 to Walker Cooper last year, has gone into the Army. St. Claire also hit a very respectable .280 for Atlanta, pooling 19 homers and batting in 107 runs.

The Braves of 1951 are much the (Continued on Page 9, Col. 8)

KEEPING UP WITH HOLLYWOOD

By LOUELLA PARSONS

HOLLYWOOD, March 25 (INS) — England will get a look at Judy Canova in July. Her boss, Papa

Yates, head of Republic, has given her permission to go to London to star in "Hot Heiress," a story that Judy, herself, and Jack Townley have scripted.

Townley wrote "Scatterbrain," "Sis Hopkins" and "Honeychile" for the gal who made piggyback pay off. Judy will stay in character in "Hot Heiress" by playing an American girl who tries to crash Europe's social creme de creme. Both English and American players will be in the cast.

Judy takes her summer vacation from radio in July, so she will have 12 weeks to remain in Europe. Before she goes she will star in "Okla-homa Annie" for Republic. Jack Elliot, who wrote "It's So Nice To Have A Man Around The House," goes along to London to arrange her songs.

How would you like to see Clark Gable, he-man of the screen, and voluptuous Jane Russell teamed in a movie? That may well happen! Howard Hughes wants to borrow Cyd Charisse to co-star with her husband, Tony Martin, who, on the strength of "Two Tickets To Broadway," gets another movie at RKO. The price M. G. M. is asking is Jane Russell. Whether or not Hughes will agree is another chapter but it wouldn't hurt Jane to be in Gable's next picture, "Lone Star" and it wouldn't hurt Clark to have her.

I can tell Bing Crosby that Dixie has been shopping for him and the boys in Paris. One of my correspondents writes me that Dixie has visited a well known shop and bought some gay wearing apparel to bring home.

Bing once told me that Dixie is like a kid about buying presents. "She starts shopping for Christmas months in advance, and she wraps every gift herself," Bing said.

Bing may do a walk-on for "Angels And The Pirates" at M. G. M. Same sort of thing he does for Bob Hope.

June Haver, who went on suspension because she did not want to do "Friendly Island," will be taken off suspension and put into "A WAC In Her Life" with William Lundigan and Frank Fay.

This picture, not a musical, is a comedy about a G. I. who returns from the war to find his wife supporting herself by renting a boarding house. It starts in early April. June was in the party that went to the film festival in Uruguay. She

Igor Troubetzkoy is expected to arrive in this country over the weekend. His attorney, Melvin Bell, will keep the Prince in hiding — maybe in Mexico — until the Barbara Hutton financial arrangement is worked out.

Eddie Collins Taken By Death; 'Y' Tourney Opens Tonight

Red Sox Vice President, And Hall of Fame Member Dies In Boston Hospital

Famous 2nd Baseman Of A's, Chisox Played 25 Seasons, Hit .333

BOSTON, March 25 (AP)—Eddie Collins, one of baseball's immortals, died tonight in Peter Bent Brigham hospital. He was 63 years old.

His career as player, manager and executive with the Philadelphia Athletics, Chicago White Sox and the Boston Red Sox covered a span of 45 years. He was vice president of the Boston Red Sox at the time of death.

Collins had been under the care of physicians since he suffered a cerebral hemorrhage last August 10. His fighting spirit, however, carried him in an out of hospitals at intervals.

A member of the Hall of Fame, Collins was recognized as one of baseball's greatest second basemen. A graduate of Columbia University, he started his major league baseball career with the Philadelphia Athletics in 1906.

He was named vice president and treasurer and business manager of the Red Sox in 1933.

Under his general management the Sox won their first pennant in 28 years in 1918. They lost the world series to the St. Louis Cardinals.

Born in Millerton, N. Y., May 2, 1887, Eddie Collins had a lifetime batting average of .333 after 25 years of active baseball playing. He was elected to baseball's Hall of Fame in 1939.

He was second baseman of Connie Mack's famous "100,000 infield" which was broken up after the 1914 world series when the Boston Braves stunned the baseball world by taking four straight from that great Philadelphia team.

Sold For $45,000 After that season "Cocky," as he was known to some oldtimers, was sold to the Chicago White Sox for the then terrific price of $45,000.

Collins first came to the attention of Mack in 1906 while playing summer ball at Rockville, Conn., a stunt which eventually cost him his baseball captaincy at Columbia University.

Late that 1906 season, having agreed to play for the Athletics after his graduation from Columbia, Collins practiced with the A's and made a western swing with the club under the name of Sullivan.

He played six games at third base and shortstop.

After he returned to college that year Columbia officials showed Collins they knew he had played summer ball and he was declared ineligible.

He completed his courses before reporting to the Athletics meanwhile acting as baseball coach, reportedly Columbia's first undergraduate varsity mentor.

Played In Six Series Called by many veterans "the king of second basemen," Collins participated in six world series, four with the A's and two with the Chicago White Sox. His batting average for the six series was .328.

He wound up his playing career on the field where he had begun it, in Philadelphia. Before going to Boston in 1933 when Tom Yawkey purchased the Boston Red Sox.

Yawkey, with Collins as his general manager and adviser, revived the once proud Sox and gave the city its first world series representative in 28 years when the 1918 post-war edition raced to the American League pennant.

When Collins first went with the A's Mack tried him at third, short, and in the outfield before placing him at second, where he became a regular in 1908, one of baseball's most brilliant.

Member Of Famed Infield During those years as a member of the "100,000 infield"—Stuffy McInnis at first, Jack Barry, present Holy Cross coach, at short, and Frank (Homerun) Baker at third—Collins' lowest batting average was .273 and his lowest fielding average was .940. Both marks were compiled in 1908, his first as a regular performer.

He played some marvelous ball in his years with the White Sox and was one of the members of that club not involved in the 1919 World Series scandal.

He became playing manager of the White Sox in 1925 and led the team through 1926 when he was released.

Six weeks after he was let go in Chicago, Connie Mack signed "Cocky" and immediately named him captain.

Even in 1927 when he was 40 years old and played in 36 games Collins was one of the league's sharpest competitive players. He used his knowledge in place of his slowing legs, positioning himself strategically and making every move count.

He appeared in only 36 games in 1928, mostly as a pinch hitter and after appearing in three games in 1930 as a pinch hitter for Connie Mack he went on the inactive list, becoming a coach.

Joined Boston In 1933 Connie released him in 1933 so he could join Tom Yawkey in assuming command of the Boston Red Sox.

One of his two sons, Eddie, Jr., had a brief fling with the Athletics as an outfielder and later was signed as administrative assistant in the Philadelphia National League Phillies farm system.

Eddie's other son, Paul, is an Episcopalian minister at Troy, N. Y.

Exhibition Games

RED SOX TOP GIANTS ST. PETERSBURG, Fla., March 25 (AP)—Home runs by Catcher Mike Guerra and second baseman Bobby Doerr, each with two on base, powered the Boston Red Sox to a 6-1 victory over the New York Giants before 4,043 fans this afternoon.

Both blows came at the expense of Larry Jansen, the Giants' ace right-hander, who pitched the first six innings.

Ray Scarborough went six innings for the Sox, allowed one run and only four hits and was the winner. Willard Nixon finished up.

TRIBE POUNDS BALL SAN FRANCISCO, March 25 (AP)—Cleveland rolled to its second straight win over the San Francisco Seals in an exhibition baseball game here today, 15 to 1.

Much the same thing happened yesterday, when the Indians won 15 to 2.

Cleveland batters teed off on Frank Barnes, the Seals' young negro right-hander. Then they settled the issue with 10 runs on 9 hits off Dick Lerner in the fourth and fifth innings.

The Seals could do little with the offerings of Early Wynn, who pitched six innings for Cleveland.

Japanese Shigeru Sugishita was the only Seal hurler to come undamaged. Sugishita retired the Indians in order in the ninth. Score: CLEVELAND (A) 202 200 100-15 16 0 SAN FRANCISCO (N) 100 000 000-1 5 1 Wynn, Cleveland (7) and Murrey; Barnes, Lerner (4), Savarese (6), Sugishita (8) and Eastwood.

YANKEES EDGE OAKS OAKLAND, Calif., March 25 (AP)—The New York Yankees benefitted from the wildness of left hander Lloyd Little today to eke out a 4-2 victory over the Oakland (PCL) Oaks before an Easter morning audience of 7,571.

The champs trailed, 2-1, as they went to bat in the ninth inning. Little, second Oaks' hurler, walked three men, Hank Bauer, Jack Jensen and Johnny Hopp, then was clipped for a base-clearing double to deep left by Cliff Mape.

Rookie first baseman Jim Marshall drove in both Oak runs on a single and home run. Score: NEW YORK (A) 000 100 000-4 5 0 OAKLAND (PCL) 100 000 000-2 11 1 Sanford, Muncie (6), Hood (8) and Berra, Silvera (7), Houk (9), Harris, Hitt (6) and Lamana.

A'S CONQUER BRAVES BRADENTON, Fla., March 25 (AP)—The Philadelphia Athletics bunched four of their nine hits with a walk and a wild pitch for four runs in the fourth inning today to down the Boston Braves 8-3. The victory salvaged one decision for the A's in a three-game series.

Neither Lou Brissie nor Carl Scheib issued a walk and they kept most of Boston's nine hits well scattered even though five of them were for extra bases.

Sam Chapman homered in the ninth for the A's off Jim Wilson who worked the last four innings for the Braves.

Left hander Warren Spahn was the victim of Philadelphia's first six runs. Two of them, however, resulted from a pair of errors by first baseman Hank Ertman in the third.

Score: PHILA. (A) 002 000 011-8 9 0 BOSTON (N) 110 000 011-3 9 2 Scheib, Brissie (6) and Tipton; Spahn, Wilson (6) and Cooper.

CARDS DOWN DODGERS MIAMI, March 25 (AP)—After going 27 innings without a run, the St. Louis Cardinals snapped out of their slump by overcoming the Brooklyn Dodgers, 5-4, before 5,652 fans today.

Trailing 4-1 in the eighth, the Red Birds scored three times on Carl Erskine to tie the score and won in the ninth on doubles by Sol Hemus and Red Schoendienst.

EVERS, TRUCKS STAR LAKELAND, Fla., March 25 (AP)—Outfielder Hoot Evers' two-run homer in the ninth off Jim Konstanty gave the Detroit Tigers an 8-7 victory over the Philadelphia National League club today.

It snapped a six-game losing streak for the Tigers in the grapefruit exhibition circuit.

The big feature of the game for Detroit, however, was that fireball pitcher Virgil Trucks, who was laid up last season by a sore arm, appeared on his way back. He had a bad start when the Phils hopped on him in the first inning for three runs but was effective the rest of his four-inning stint. The big right-hander reported his arm felt fine after the game. Wehmeier and Lefty Harry Perkowsky limited the winners to six hits—three less than the Reds got off rookie Dick Donovan and Bob Hall—but the Redlegs chuckers got

Kansas State And Kentucky Meet Tuesday

NCAA Title At Stake In Minneapolis Tilt; Aggies, Illinois Lose

NEW YORK, March 25 (AP)—Kentucky will meet Kansas State in Minneapolis Tuesday for the NCAA basketball championship, and the "man you'd expect most to know couldn't make up his mind today about the outcome.

"Kentucky is bigger and more aggressive," said Illinois' coach Harry Combes, "but Kansas State, I think, is smoother and a better shooting club."

The No. 1 nationally ranked Kentuckians edged Illinois, 76-74, in a movie-like thriller last night to win the eastern tournament at Madison Square Garden.

Just ten days ago the same Illinois team was swamped, 91-72, in a practice game by Kansas State, winner of the western tournament last night at Kansas City. K-State smothered Oklahoma A. and M., the country's No. 2 team in the final Associated Press poll, 68-44.

"We played much better against Kentucky than against Kansas State," Combes said. "But they are two strong clubs—both fast and with a lot of drive. I look for a close, high-scoring game."

"If I thought Kansas State could shoot as they did against us—they hit 43 per cent of their shots—then I'd have to string along with Kansas State."

"But if they aren't hitting well, I'd have to pick Kentucky on its size, poise and aggressiveness."

Leave By Plane Both Kentucky and Illinois left by air today for Minneapolis where they will engage in the final program Tuesday night. Illinois, the Big Ten champion, will play Oklahoma A. and M. in the consolation game at 9 p. m. (EST) with the championship tilt to follow.

A crowd of 16,425 was brought to its tiptoes by the stirring basketball drama waged in the eastern finals by Kentucky and Illinois. The game was decided in the final 18 seconds on a driving layup shot by Shelby Linville, Kentucky forward from Middletown, Ohio, but that was only one of the numerous climaxes that piled on each other during the fast, hard-driving battle.

The score was tied 13 times and went down to the last three minutes with Kentucky, having battled back from a 32-39 deficit at the half, leading 70-69.

Spivey Fouls Out It was at this point that Kentucky's seven-foot All-America pivot star, Bill Spivey, went to the side lines with five personal fouls and 28 points, just four shy of the tournament record.

Linville, a regular forward who had been sitting out four personals on the bench, was rushed into the breach. Coach Adolph Rupp of Kentucky never made a more timely move.

In three drives down the floor, Linville hit for three "clutch" baskets that kept the Wildcats even at 72-72, 74-74 and then clinched the victory with time running out fast.

St. John's of Brooklyn won the eastern third place consolation, beating North Carolina State, 71-59. At Kansas City, Washington won over Brigham Young in the consolation, 80-67.

Coast Cagers Cop AAU Title

San Francisco Tops Colorado Five, 76-55

DENVER, March 25 (AP)—The championship victory of San Francisco Stewart Chevrolet in the 44th annual National AAU Basketball Tournament last night may soon be forgotten but the fans will remember for decades the 65-foot shot by Irish Johnny O'Boyle that won a torrid semifinal game.

O'Boyle, a Brooklyn kid in his junior year at Colorado A. & M. College, turned Denver City Auditorium into pandemonium Friday night when he pushed the ball almost three-fourths the length of the floor in the final second to beat the strong Peoria, Ills., Caterpillar Diesels 59-57.

One observer quipped: "I haven't seen one like that since I quit reading the pulp magazines."

The win sent the Colorado A. & M. team, entered as the Poude Valley Creamery of Fort Collins, Colo., into the finals against the San Francisco Chevrolet. The west coast team dethroned the perennial champion Phillips 66ers of Bartlesville, Okla., in a three-overtimes semifinal thriller, 66-63.

Those were the decisive games in the week-long tourney between 41 of the finest AAU teams from 22 states. Actually the San Franciscans won the title when they knocked over the Phillips club.

The weary Colorado College lads, lacking reserves, were tromped by the veteran AAUers from California, 76-55 in the anti-climatic finals. Phillips wound up in third place with a 72-55 frolic over Peoria.

Their bout will be broadcast and telecast.

The Wednesday night radio-TV network show will come out of Detroit where Chuck Hunter of Cleveland will tangle with Detroit's Ray Barnes in a middleweight ten rounder. Hunter moved back into the limelight last Wednesday when he shellacked Jimmy Beau.

Saddler swings back into action Tuesday night in Los Angeles when he faces Lauro Sales of Mexico in a non-title ten rounder.

Murphy, the colorful San Diego light heavyweight, moves to Milwaukee Monday night for a ten rounder with Joe Blackwood of New York.

Marciano, up-and-coming young heavyweight contender, will meet Art Henri of New York at Providence, R. I., tomorrow night.

Sunday School Teams Will Meet Tomorrow To Arrange Playoffs

Representatives of eight teams involved in the playoffs in the Central YMCA Sunday School Basketball League will meet at 7:30 p. m. Tuesday at the "Y" to make plans for the games which might get under way Friday.

The regular league schedule ended Saturday with Centre Street Methodist and Emmanuel Episcopal tied for first place. Other teams that qualified for the playoffs are St. Paul's Lutheran, First Presbyterian, Calvary Methodist and Central Methodist. Final standings:

Art Doering's 209 Tops Field At Greensboro

Leads By Four Strokes With 18 Holes To Play, Jack Burke Is 2nd

GREENSBORO, N. C., March 25 (INS)—Art Doering, a 24-year-old Virginian who has picked up only $800 playing golf this year, widened his lead to four strokes in today's third round of the $10,000 Greater Greensboro Open Tournament.

The unemployed professional from Richmond fired a three-under-par 68 for a 54-hole total of 209 over the Starmount Country Club course.

With only 18 more holes to play against the field of 160, Doering was in sight of his first major tournament victory.

In second place was Jack Burke, Jr., of Houston, Tex., who banged out the best game of the day, a four-under-par 67 made possible mostly by an eagle three on the 18th.

Burke's 213 virtually secured second place for him, since a third-place deadlock held Jack Shields, of Cedar Rapids, Ia., and Robert Divenzo, of Buenos Aires, at 215. They both shot 69's today.

Marty Furgol, of Long Beach, Cal., the tournament leader after the first round, continued to fall away and was next at 216.

The more famous entries were all trailing the field badly. Defending champion Sam Snead was 10 strokes back of the leader at 219. Jim Ferrier, winner of three straight Florida tournaments a few weeks ago, was in a four-way tie for sixth spot at 217.

And Lloyd Mangrum, golf's leading money-maker this year, was out of the running with a 220.

Ferrier's tie at 217 was with Bob Toski, of Northampton, Mass.; Johnny Bulla, of Verona, Pa., and Hobart Manley, a young amateur from Savannah, Ga., who carded a 68 today.

NEW YORK, March 25 (AP)—Kid Gavilan, Gene Hairston, Irish Bobby Murphy, Chuck Hunter, Rocky Marciano and featherweight champion Sandy Saddler brighten up the fight picture this week.

Gavilan, the Cuban welterweight contender, and Hairston, the crack young middleweight, clash in a return ten round bout in Madison Square Garden Friday night.

Hairston, a deaf-mute, won a split decision over the Cuban Flash last October. The New York Negro is unbeaten in his last 13 fights.

Gavilan, after one bad spell, has moved back on the winning track and is determined to avenge the defeat.

Their bout will be broadcast and telecast.

The Wednesday night radio-TV network show will come out of Detroit where Chuck Hunter of Cleveland will tangle with Detroit's Ray Barnes in a middleweight ten rounder. Hunter moved back into the limelight last Wednesday when he shellacked Jimmy Beau.

2 Gls Mourned As Dead Are PWs

PITTSBURGH, March 25. (AP) — The Easter story of the Resurrection took on new meaning for two Western Pennsylvania families of servicemen today.

A Butler County clergyman and a Washington, Pa., mother learned the 19-year-old sons they had mourned as lost on Korean battlefields actually are prisoners of war.

The Rev. Harlan M. Miller, Chichester, said he recognized his son's face in a group picture published by newspapers. The picture showed a group of a dozen Pennsylvanians in the hands of Red forces in Korea.

The photograph, which came from Peiping, China, lists the man as Wally Miller of Pittsburgh. Despite the different spelling, the Millers think the picture is that of their oldest son. He was reported missing in action Dec. 1.

The other message of hope came when the Pittsburgh Sun-Telegraph notified Mrs. Antoinette Razvoza that she was about to hear from the Marine son she believed had been killed almost four months ago.

The newspaper had learned that a letter from her son, Sgt. Richard J. Razvoza, a prisoner of war, had been received by a Denver, Colo., family which received a packet of 23 letters from prisoners for forwarding.

Johnston's Warning

WASHINGTON, March 25. (AP) — Economic Stabilizer Eric Johnston said today that if business profits or farm prices keep going up, or if laboring men ask for wage raises beyond the present 10 per cent limit, it could "blow the roof off inflation."

In a television interview, he again used tough language as a part of a developing government drive to combat signs of a public letdown in the anti-inflation fight.

"End Use" Self-Evident

WASHINGTON, March 25. (AP) — The Commerce Department said today an exporter to British Hong Kong who failed to state on the form the "end use" of his shipment won't have to do so after all.

A department appeals board decreed "the end use is self-evident." The shipment was 100 dozen diapers.

Attempt To Get Jobs

A sincere attempt then is made to place the individual in a job. His card is filed under the occupations for which he can qualify according to test scores and when employers ask for people with particular skills, these applicants are notified. Patrick J. Carroll, employment manager, reports that for every four persons sent to employers on the strength of their tests, three are hired.

More than a thousand persons have been tested since the battery became available here after World War II and employers are anxious to know test results when hiring new personnel.

Counseling interviewers hold tests each Friday morning at the local employment office free of charge. Interviewers also stress the importance of good appearance on the part of the job seeker after classification. Thus job hunting is made easier for the applicant.

Coroner's Probe Due Wednesday In Durbin Death

Rites Are Planned Here Tomorrow

A coroner's inquest will be held Wednesday in Uniontown, Pa., in the case of William R. Durbin, 35, 810 Fairmont Avenue, Western Maryland Railway brakeman who was found shot to death Saturday in an alley in Connellsville, Pa., according to the Associated Press.

Police said they have taken no action against Donald C. Rutter, 37, who told officers he shot the man when he found him trying to climb into the Rutter's second story bedroom window.

Rutter said he and his wife were awakened by a prowler on a porch roof. Rutter said he fired two shots from a German Luger revolver and the man either climbed or fell from the roof.

Hearing moaning later in a nearby alley, Rutter said he went to a nearby home and called police.

Frank Kane, Fayette county, Pa., detective, said:

"It looks like an out-and-out case of justifiable homicide. As far as we know, no charges will be preferred."

Rites will be held tomorrow at 9 a.m. in St. Mary's Catholic Church.

Interment will take place in Hillcrest Burial Park.

William McKelg Lodge No. 440, Brotherhood of Railroad Trainmen, held a service yesterday at 8:30 p.m. in the Hafer funeral home. Durbin was well known in labor circles and served for several years as chairman of the Western Maryland unit.

Durbin left here Friday on a run to Dickerson, Pa., four miles west of Connellsville. The train's conductor, Arthur C. Gaylord, 32, of Ridgely, said they reached their destination at 9:41 p.m. and went to a nearby restaurant.

Later, Gaylord said, they returned to the caboose and went to bed since a return trip to Cumberland was scheduled at 6 a.m. yesterday. He was unaware of Durbin's death until police awakened him.

A veteran of World War II, Durbin was a son of William Ralph and Della Flaherty Durbin. Survivors include his widow, the former Miss Hilda Smith; a three-year-old daughter, Joyce Rae, and two sisters, Mrs. Glenn Lee and Mrs. Mary Rice, this city.

Local Boy Shot On Wills Mountain

A 15-year-old Cumberland boy was in Memorial Hospital last night for treatment of a bullet wound in his left foot as the result of "shooting mark" on Wills Mountain yesterday afternoon.

Warren Smith, 15, of 23 Weber Street, and three 16-year-old companions were about 1 1/2 miles behind Wills Mountain Inn shooting mark with a 22 calibre pump-action rifle when the incident occurred, State Police said.

Trooper Jack Browning, said the boys told him that Harold Young, 16, of Columbia Street, was pointing the rifle, which they believed to be unloaded, at Smith. Smith reportedly grabbed the barrel of the weapon and pushed it toward the ground. The gun was discharged in the process, with the bullet entering the top of Smith's left foot, State Police said.

Aptitude Tests Help Jobless Get Established In Careers

By FAY W. GUM
News Staff Writer

Job hunting just isn't what it used to be!

Not so long ago it was necessary for anyone who wanted to become established in a career to go through the sometimes disheartening routine of trying job after job until he found one for which he was best suited. He had little knowledge of his aptitude and ability and often spent months, or even years, in futile attempts to locate himself in his proper occupational niche.

Now, through a series of tests offered by the Maryland State Employment Service one can learn the type of work he can best handle in a matter of a few hours.

General Aptitude Tests

The tests, known as the General Aptitude Test Battery, are administered by one or more specialists at the local office. They are William B. Orndorff, Edward J. Wegman, Edward L. Matthews and William F. Aldridge.

The purpose of the battery is to classify persons tested so that prospective employers can hire individuals with known abilities rather than just hope the person hired will fit into the organization. Individuals and companies who have hired workers on the basis of the tests, report a high percentage of success.

Worker Learns Ability

Probably the most important result of the tests is that often the worker learns he has been seeking a career in a field in which he has little or no ability. His scores tell him what work he can most successfully follow. Applicants believe in the tests and many embark on lifetime careers on the strength of the results. Employment Service specialists stated.

The battery consists of 11 paper and pencil tests and four apparatus tests. It measures aptitudes in ten key classifications—general learning ability, verbal ability, numerical and spatial ability, form perception, clerical perception, hand-eye coordination, motor speed, finger dexterity, and manual dexterity.

Scores made in these categories are computed and translated so the job applicant's aptitude is determined in one or more of 20 major types of work. Each type is general and applies to many individual jobs requiring similar skills.

These general categories are creative writing, accounting, engineering, machining, mechanical repair, computing and recording, artistic drawing and arranging, electrical and radio repair, typing, stenographic work, typesetting and composing, engine and equipment repair, drafting, equipment and maintenance.

Delegate Slaps Handling Of Bill In Legislature

Whitworth Takes Issue With Byrd

Delegate Horace P. Whitworth, Jr., charged over the weekend that a bill to enlarge the powers of the University of Maryland Board of Regents was improperly handled in the House of Delegates.

The measure, calling for a constitutional amendment giving the board sweeping authority in the administration of the school, was introduced in the House Tuesday.

It was sent to the chamber's Education Committee.

"This bill deals with the framework of our Government," Whitworth said.

"It is the only bill dealing with a constitutional amendment that has been referred to any committee except the judiciary."

"Expressing strong opposition to the measure, Whitworth charged that it was drawn after the Board of Public Works withheld initial approval of a building already under construction at the Princess Anne branch of the university."

"It was the first time the Board of Public Works didn't do what Dr. H. C. Byrd wanted it to," Whitworth said. "That's the reason for this bill."

Whitworth also took issue with a statement made Friday by Dr. Byrd who declared the school was not "state-supported."

Dr. Byrd added that three fifths of the university's revenue "comes from the people who pay for the services" of the institution and its branches.

Cites Tax Levies

"Between 1936 and 1952 we've had to levy taxes on the people for $34,590,000 for the university," Whitworth said.

"Between 1936 and 1950, capital improvements for which the State has pledged its credit came to almost $16,000,000."

"That's State-supported, if you ask me," Whitworth declared.

Area Industrial Fund Drive Will Open This Week

Eiler Will Head Campaign Committee

The Cumberland and Allegany Industrial Promotion Company will open a drive here this week to raise $5,000 in cash and $10,000 in pledges to finance industrial development activities in this area, according to William C. Walsh, president.

The opening gun in the drive to meet obligations under a contract with Richardson Wood and Company, New York, will be held tomorrow at 6:30 p.m. in Central YMCA, when the campaign committee, headed by Frederic W. Eiler, meets to outline details of the drive.

Plans to raise the needed money and pledges were worked out by the company's finance committee, headed by Joseph M. Naughton.

Seek New Industries

The local Industrial Promotion Company was incorporated in the fall of 1949, and grew out of efforts of the Cumberland Industrial Promotion Committee appointed by the Mayor and City Council of Cumberland, and the Industrial Committee of the Chamber of Commerce to develop plans for securing new industries for this area. Howard M. Smith, former local superintendent.

In September 1950, Richardson Wood and Company, which specializes in industrial promotion and development, was employed to endeavor to secure new industries for Cumberland and Allegany County, at a fee of $10,000 for a six month period. This $10,000 was provided by the Mayor and City Council of Cumberland and the County Commissioners of Allegany County, in equal proportions, and as there was some question as to the legal authority of the City and County to contribute funds to the Industrial Promotion Company, the money was channeled through the Industrial Promotion Committee.

Legislation Expected

However, the present contract with Richardson Wood and Company has been made directly with the local Industrial Promotion Company, and legislation to enable the County and City to contribute money to this company has been presented to the Legislature, and it is expected that this enabling legislation will be passed this week. It has already passed the House of Delegates and will be placed before the State Senate by Senator Kimble tonight.

Two Local Boys Quizzed In Thefts

Two 14-year old Cumberland youths, caught by Assistant Police Chief B. F. Gaffney as they were dividing their spoils, admitted shortly before midnight last night that they had burglarized two downtown business places earlier in the evening.

Chief Gaffney said he saw the boys counting out money in a doorway of a store on North Centre Street.

Brought to police headquarters, where Gaffney and Detective Ernest Powell questioned them, the boys admitted they broke into the Scoreboard, 20 North Mechanic Street, where they got $38 after forcing a door, and Virginia's Beauty Shop, South Liberty Street, where they obtained only 20 cents after gaining entrance by use of a skeleton key. They will be held for Juvenile Court action.

Industrial Production Allocated In State

Ninety Maryland firms located in 15 counties have had their production allocated to defense agencies. The Maryland State Planning Commission said this information was made available by the Munitions Board.

The 90 firms have agreed to assign portions of their manufacturing capacity for the production of specified quantities of various items in the event of war.

Since Maryland industries can supply a diversified number of items needed by the Defense Department, assurances is given that the manufacturers will be maintained and possibly grow.

The counties in which allocated plants are located are: Anne Arundel, Baltimore, Baltimore City, Carroll, Cecil, Dorchester, Frederick, Harford, Kent, Montgomery, Prince George's, Somerset, Talbot, Washington and Wicomico.

Residents Ignore Wintry Blasts On Easter Day

Throngs Pay Homage To Risen Christ

Although Cumberlanders still felt the cold breath of Old Man Winter, who refused to believe that Spring is really here, most residents of this community ventured out in their new Easter finery yesterday.

Teen-age girls were just as stubborn as their elders in ignoring the weather as Winter was in refusing to bow out gracefully to Dame Spring.

Bright Colors

The typical bright Easter colors prevailed in the new suits, dresses and coats. Spring flowers in lovely corsages were present in abundance. When the sun shone brightly during the afternoon hours, showing the downtown temperature to the day's high of 49 degrees, many young folks joined in the traditional "Easter Parade."

Many of the older women, being more practical than the youngsters, dressed in fur coats and other typical winter attire. Most of the men, those who had new spring suits, kept them pretty well hidden beneath their topcoats.

Church Attended

Although stress was given to new Easter clothes, most Cumberlanders also remembered the deeper spiritual significance of Easter as they crowded into the city's churches to sing "Hallelujahs" for the Resurrection of Jesus Christ.

Throngs of local residents showed their religious ardor by attending sunrise services.

"The very presence of this group here is ample proof that Christ has arisen," Rev. John Bayley Jones, pastor of First Methodist Church, Frostburg told an audience of about 700 at yesterday's Easter Sunrise Service in Fort Hill Auditorium.

Rev. Jones delivered the sermon at the service sponsored by the Cumberland Ministerial Association.

Building Permits Show Decrease

Builders in the Cumberland area spent a total of $46,650 on building permits during the month of February. This is a decrease over the same period of 1950 which shows $124,395 spent.

The report figures issued by the research department of the Richmond Federal Reserve Bank show that for the first two month period in 1950, $156,245 was spent while the first two months in 1951 show a figure of $142,410.

Today's Sermonette

By REV. SETH C. MORROW

Today's sermonette is a digest of the Easter sermon preached yesterday morning at First Presbyterian Church by the pastor, Rev. Seth C. Morrow. The sermon digests are being prepared through the cooperation of the Cumberland Ministerial Association.

The Easter Message

Before bringing you the Easter message may I give you my Easter greeting. May this day see God's sun shining in your sky, the sun of His redeeming, unfailing love. May it heal your hurt, comfort your sorrow, and bring you lasting peace. As this Easter day moves to a close may your life be filled with evidences of the risen Christ.

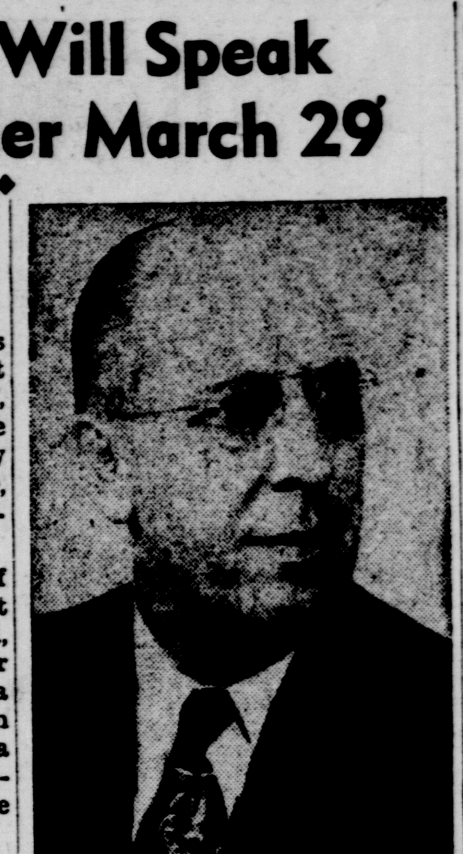

Though He is unseen now to mortal eyes, may your soul actually see Him today and may your greeting to Him be the word of believing Thomas, "My Lord, and My God." Finally, when life's evening shall fall, may your acquaintance with the risen Lord keep your heart from being dismayed. May you say, "I shall live and not die, because He who died for me now lives."

All this, and nothing less, is my Easter wish for you. And now the Easter message. Let us return again, to old Jerusalem nineteen hundred years ago.

At this point Rev. Mr. Morrow related in vividly descriptive language the Easter story, including Christ's last word on the cross, His burial and His resurrection to the point where Mary Magdalene brought to the disciples and the world the deathless message, "He is alive forevermore."

The climax of Mr. Morrow's message follows: Christ is alive forevermore. Then our faith in God is never misplaced. We can trust His redeeming love and power.

Jesus lived an absolutely perfect life. He was crucified by sinful men, dead and buried. Is that all? God just let Him die on the Cross? Could you trust a God like that? But Christ is risen from the dead. God did not suffer His Only One to see corruption. Not in vain did He say, because He who died for me now

County Teachers May Be Given Job Preference

Minority Budget Report Is Issued

Delegate Lester B. Reed has introduced a bill which would give Allegany County residents and graduates of Frostburg State Teachers College priority for teaching positions in Allegany County public schools.

The legislation, introduced Friday and referred to the Education Committee of the House, provides that no person may be appointed as a principal or teacher in the public schools of this county unless he has been a resident of the county for five years or is a graduate of Frostburg State Teachers College.

Reed said the bill is being introduced to give county people a better chance to qualify for school posts. He added that provisions would be waived in times of national emergency.

Issues GOP Report

Delegate Horace P. Whitworth, Jr., Allegany County Republican, released over the weekend the minority party report on the budget for the fiscal year ending June 30, 1951. The report follows:

The committee believes that one of the principal faults with the State of Maryland budget is found in the existing laws which permit the present methods of handling state finances. In support of this conclusion, the committee cites the fallacy of supplementary appropriations which distort the true picture of government expenditures. The factual budget is not present. Bond issue bills and supplementary appropriations, together with possible budget amendments, all must be considered together under the present system for one to have the correct financial picture in Maryland on the state's fiscal structure.

The minority report and subcommittee of the Ways and Means Committee recommends that a budget system be adopted which would embody the following principles:

1. Expenditure ceilings for all departments and functions with appropriations not to be exceeded, even though collections may amount to more than sums appropriated.

2. Accumulation of all unexpended appropriations and receipts in excess of revenue estimates as surplus to be applied to the requirements of the succeeding year.

3. The reduction in the number of special funds.

4. The elimination, as far as possible, of the supplementary appropriations and bond issue bills, and have one document covering all expenditures and purposes, including a complete capital fund budget for all public improvement acquisition financed by either bond issues or pay-as-you-go funds.

On Honor Roll

Daniel W. Johnson, Jr., 647 Sedgewick Street, has been named to the honor roll at the University of Maryland. A graduate of Allegany High School and a veteran, Johnson is an education major in the senior class.

He was a native of Baltimore, where he was born July 10, 1922. Surviving are his widow, Mrs. Nellie Washington Robinson; three brothers, Verdie Robinson, who lives in Virginia, and Thomas and Roland Robinson, both California residents, and two sisters, Mrs. Mayme Connely and Mrs. Dona Tenn, both of Detroit, Mich.

Robinson, who had been a barber in Cumberland for more than 30 years, died while sitting in a chair in Davis' residence at 1019 Gay Street. Dr. Deming said Robinson suffered from a heart condition. He was taken ill at 5:15 p.m

O'Dwyer Campaign Fund Probe May Be Reopened, Tobey Says

Investigator Predicts Public Pressure Will Force Extension Of Committee's Life

WASHINGTON, March 25. (AP)—Sen. Tobey (R-NH) predicted today that Senate crime probes will reopen their investigation of William O'Dwyer's campaign funds if their committee is allowed to continue its work.

And Tobey, ranking Republican member of the committee, said he thought public pressure would force an extension of the committee's life beyond next Saturday, the day it will go out of existence unless the Senate votes it more time.

Russia Spending Most On Weapons On Income Basis

WASHINGTON, March 25. (AP)—The State Department says that Russia still leads the world in the percentage of national income spent on arms.

The Western nations have been busily rearming; Russia has said it is using a "peace budget."

Yet, says the State Department, the new Soviet budget shows Russia is spending 20 per cent of its national income on arms compared with 15 per cent by the West.

Reception Given Atom Claim Irks President Peron

Isn't Interested In What U. S. Thinks

BUENOS AIRES, Argentina, March 25. (AP)—President Juan D. Peron, obviously irked by skeptical comments from abroad on his government's announcement yesterday that Argentina had discovered a radically new and cheaper way to produce atomic energy, said today he is not interested in what the United States or any other country thinks.

Foreign reporters, however, were allowed to get a first-hand account of the discovery from Dr. Ronald Richter, the Austrian-born scientist who claims to have made it. The foreign press had been excluded from yesterday's official announcement.

Peron, writing in the authoritative and semi-official newspaper Democracia, said:

"I am not interested in what the United States or any other country in the world thinks."

Slaps Politicians Abroad

He said he made the startling announcement "not for other countries but for my country."

"Consequently," Peron said, "foreign newspapermen were not invited to the news conference x x x. I wanted to speak to my people, to whom I am responsible, thus avoiding the course followed by politicians and newspapers in other countries of the world who lie knowingly and direct their lies to their own people and abroad."

"They have not yet told the first truth," he added, "while I have not told the first lie."

Dr. Richter, now an Argentine citizen, told the reporters today he believed U. S. scientists are working on the same principle as his discovery and may have a similar discovery within their grasp.

Claim Meets Ridicule

"Numerous American and European scientists expressed everything from cautious surprise to outright ridicule of the Argentine claim. Some said it seemed merely an enlargement on predictions made in the last several years that the same reaction the sun uses to make heat—the same that would make a hydrogen bomb—may become a source of power."

"American scientists agreed it may be possible to produce this reaction—fusion of two atoms to make a new and larger atom—on a tiny laboratory scale. But none held hopes this could be extended to produce power."

Mr. Richter, now an Argentine citizen, told the reporters today he believed U. S. scientists are working on the same principle as his discovery and may have a similar discovery within their grasp.

Hotel Fire Routs 200 From Rooms

DES MOINES, Ia., March 25. (AP)—Fire this morning routed 200 guests from 11-story Hotel Fort Des Moines, including Actor Henry Fonda and other members of the "Mr. Roberts" stage cast.

The blaze broke out in a repair room on the top floor of the 11-story hotel, Des Moines' largest.

Guests were ordered to the lobby by Hotel Manager Scotty Anderson, many of them appearing without shoes, socks or shirts.

It was a long walk for some guests. A workman in the hotel basement, hearing the fire alarm, pulled an electric switch shutting off power to the elevators.

Anderson said three firemen were overcome by smoke and an elevator girl was treated and damaged to the hotel appeared slight, with the blaze confined to the room where it broke out.

Editor Of Seized Argentine Paper Safe In Uruguay

Refuses To Say How He Escaped Dragnet

MONTEVIDEO, Uruguay, March 25. (AP)—Alberto Gainza Paz, editor-publisher of the seized Buenos Aires newspaper La Prensa and a fugitive from an Argentine congressional committee, has taken refuge in Uruguay. He said today he intends to remain, at least for the present, at his mother's ranch, 150 miles west of here.

He declined, in a telephone interview, to say how he escaped an Argentine police dragnet to reach the ranch last Friday and declined comment on the situation at his newspaper, long ranked as one of the world's greatest. About all he would say was that his health was excellent.

The Congress committee, appointed last week to take over and investigate the strikebound independent newspaper, denounced Gainza Paz as a fugitive because police were unable to find him to serve a 15-day sentence for contempt of Congress. La Prensa never was friendly to President Juan D. Peron of Argentina.

Aaron Anchorena, his stepfather, said today Gainza Paz came here Friday, the day after the committee ordered his arrest. He said he did not know what means of travel the 32-year-old editor used, but that he came alone. Argentine police have been watching planes and river passenger vessels closely since last Thursday.

The editor of the big, 81-year-old newspaper disappeared last Thursday night just before the arrest order went out. He had been ordered to jail for sending a statement to Congress charging that seizure of his strike-bound paper violated Argentina's constitutional guarantee of freedom of the press.

The investigating committee had taken over the books, funds and files of La Prensa last Tuesday and had issued subpoenas for all of the paper's administrative officials and department heads to appear at the congressional building.

Big 4 Deputies Talks Magnify Differences

PARIS, March 25. (AP)—Three weeks of East-West talks have magnified, not diminished, differences between Russia and the West over two of today's gravest international issues.

"Any other interpretation," said an official of one of the delegations, "is an ostrich-with-his-head-in-the-sand attitude."

The two issues are:

1. West rearmament, and particularly the rearmament of Western Germany.

2. The level of arms of the four great powers and those of a number of countries allied with them.

Through the winding streets of the ancient city—now held by the Arab kingdom of Jordan—where Christ made His tortured journey to Calvary.

The pilgrims to the Holy Land passed through barbed wire entanglements—Jerusalem's present-day crown of thorns—past the armed guards of Israel and Jordan.

Pope Pius, standing on the central loggia of St. Peter's Basilica overlooking the huge square in Rome, made a fervent appeal before a throng of 100,000 for brotherly accord to free the world of lust and violence so people might live, and work in peace. His blessings to the world were broadcast and relayed over the radios of many lands.

Amid the roar and stench of war-torn Korea, soldiers of the United Nations gathered outside their muddy foxholes before crude wooden altars to hear the message of Easter hope from Catholic and Protestant chaplains.

President and Mrs. Truman and their daughter Margaret went to church in Washington, as did the heads of many governments in other capitals.

The theme of an urgent wish for peace in the midst of bristling arms and threats of war was everywhere.

But on the brighter side, children awoke in breathless anticipation of the hunt for brilliant-colored Easter eggs and presents from the Easter rabbit. Their elders donned new spring finery to promenade up and down the avenues of cities and towns. And to crowd the churches.

A glittering sun shone over New York's Fifth Avenue, where the granddaddy of all Easter parades was televised across the nation.

Doctors have advised her parents, ened parents. They realized $866.

M'Arthur Bid Seen Designed To Start Talk

Red China May Also Worry About Coast

TOKYO, March 25. (AP)—The implication that Red China might be attacked, coupled with Gen. MacArthur's peace overture Saturday, apparently was designed by the United Nations commander to stimulate a little thought on the matter.

It appeared here as a calculated time bomb to cap the ninth month of a bitter Korean campaign that seems to be getting closer to the theoretical stalemate that MacArthur has predicted.

In his statement, he made a four-point outline of reasons why he considered the Communists have lost the chance to conquer South Korea.

Then he added that if the United Nations decided on "an expansion of our military operations to his (the Chinese Red) coastal areas and interior bases," this "would doom Red China to the risk of imminent military collapse."

West Caught By Surprise

That statement certainly caught the western world by surprise and probably had the same effect on Peking. This may have been one of its purposes. As far as is known here, it was not submitted beforehand to Washington.

The surprise can be expected to increase the amount of speculation about the statement. If that discussion reaches only a fraction of the words expended on the 38th parallel—which is regarded in Tokyo as meaningless—the military effect could be momentous.

What MacArthur apparently wants is to start Peking worrying about its South China flank. Here is the background:

Red China was able to assemble the bulk of its trained military forces in Manchuria and to send them into Korea with relative security. The Third and Fourth Field Armies could be taken from South China because the U. S. Seventh Fleet was assigned to patrol the coast so long as Nationalist China refrained from attacking the mainland.

Can't Use Favorite Weapon

"We sent the Seventh Fleet out to protect Communist China," one officer here commented.

That policy has prevented MacArthur from using his favorite military weapon: A flank thrust or feint. Instead, he has had to plow straight up the Korean peninsula against a heavier Chinese line.

Now the substance of MacArthur's recent statements is that the Communists cannot win in Korea—and neither, under present circumstances, can the Allies.

Congress Lags; Probes Blamed

WASHINGTON, March 25. (AP)—The 82nd Congress, in the midst of a national emergency, has made one of the slowest starts in years on actual legislation, a checkup showed today.

President Truman's legislation program presented in his state of the union message Jan. 8 has been only slightly touched.

With three months of the session gone, some congressmen have expressed private belief that the main job of legislating is being slowed down because so many investigations were under way.

Majority Leader McFarland (D-Ariz.) recently told the Senate, as he pressed for action on the troops-to-Europe issue, that the Senate should "tend to its knitting." He included reference to the investigative activity.

The Senate has originated only nine bills that have cleared the legislative machinery. And seven of those are minor measures classed as "private relief."

The record of the House—now in recess until April 2—is about the same.

Her Last Birthday?

Little Beverly Green, who doesn't know she is suffering from cancer of both legs, was seven years old yesterday and her celebration was one of the happiest she has ever had. Hundreds of cards and many gifts came to her home in Ludlow, Mass. Doctors have advised her parents, Mr. and Mrs. Merton Green, that amputation might be hazardous. So they have decided to let her live as normal a life as possible without surgery. (Story at bottom of page)

Spain Is Ready To Sign Military Pact With U. S.

Offers Conditioned On Arms Guarantee

WASHINGTON, March 25. (AP)—The Spanish government is reported ready to sign a direct military alliance with the United States modeled after the North Atlantic defense pact.

Generalissimo Franco, officials said, has informed American Ambassador Stanton Griffis of this during informal talks in Madrid.

The Spanish leader is also reported to have expressed willingness to consider a triangular defense alliance linking Spain, Portugal and the United States.

U. S. Must Guarantee Arms

Both these offers, however, were said to be conditioned on a firm American guarantee the United States will ship Spain enough arms to modernize its armed forces.

Diplomatic informants, who cannot be identified, told a reporter, Franco has advised Griffis:

1. If the United States agreed to negotiate a military pact with Spain, the Spanish government would be willing to accept all commitments contained in the 12-nation North Atlantic defense pact.

2. Spain would be willing to consider an attack on any of the 12 member nations as an attack on Spain, and would be willing to provide full military assistance to the threatened country.

Would Defend West Europe

3. The Spanish government is prepared to move its army beyond the Pyrenees into Western Europe, if desired, to help repel such aggression in cooperation with North Atlantic pact armies.

The State Department has refused to confirm or deny any negotiations with Spain were in progress. It said last week our relations with Spain have entered a "new phase."

Truman To Call For Interamerican Unity

WASHINGTON, March 25. (AP)—President Truman goes before the Western Hemisphere's senior council tomorrow with an expected urgent call for American unity in the face of Communist aggression.

His speech opening the consultative conference of foreign ministers of the American republics presumably will outline what cooperation the U. S. hopes for from its Latin neighbors. At the same time, diplomats look for him to say what help the U. S. can give to cushion the impact on Latin American economies of shortages caused by the U. S. defense effort.

Troop Debate Nears End

WASHINGTON, March 25. (AP)—The Senate winds up its troops-to-Europe debate this week with the virtual certainty that it will approve sending four U. S. divisions abroad but ask for a congressional veto in future assignments.

Three American Warships To Join Search For Plane

SHANNON AIRPORT, Ireland, March 25. (AP)—The U. S. Navy sent three warships tonight to join one of the biggest air-sea searches in history for a U. S. Air Force Globemaster which disappeared in the Atlantic on Good Friday with 53 American airmen aboard.

Today about 35 planes, a British submarine, an ice breaker and two weather ships criss-crossed the search area, but found no trace of the Globemaster. Hope faded fast that any of those aboard would be found alive.

The aircraft carrier Coral Sea and two destroyers, en route from Norfolk, Va., to join the U. S. Sixth Fleet in the Mediterranean, were diverted to the Atlantic area 630 miles southwest of Shannon where the vast search is under way.

Sailors Stage Raid 50 Miles Beyond Line

TOKYO, Monday, March 26. (AP)—South Korean army patrols repeatedly punched north of the 38th parallel near Korea's east coast Sunday while naval headquarters disclosed a landing party raid deep inside the Red north on the west coast.

The South Korean Sailor's hit-run landing took place Saturday on the Wolsa peninsula, 50 miles north of the old political boundary. It was near the Taedong River estuary leading to Chinnampo, port for the Korean Red capital of Pyongyang. The raiders killed 100 Communist soldiers and captured 69 and some equipment. No other details were given.

The area has been the scene of much anti-Red underground activity.

South Korean army headquarters announced its forces driving north from Kangnung on the east coast had reached the 38th parallel and sent patrols frequently north of that line.

Most of Front Waterlogged

Both actions were announced as the Korean war entered its tenth month today.

Most of the front was waterlogged and fog-bound Easter Sunday. Fighting was limited to armored patrol skirmishes.

A pelting day-long rain, first of this spring, grounded Allied warplanes and turned roads into quagmires.

The inclement weather and sharp censorship by U. S. Eighth Army authorities obscured details of the three-division Allied offensive on the western front, north of Seoul.

Associated Press Correspondent William C. Barnard was able to report, however, that Chinese forces were withdrawing northward toward the 38th parallel in a sector north of Seoul. American and South Korean troops there reported only light patrol contact with the retreating Reds.

Not All Reds In Retreat

How far the Chinese pulled back was not told. Not all of the Reds were in retreat.

American infantry patrols moving northwest of the former Chinese supply and concentration center at Chunchon bumped into entrenched Reds along a ring of hills only a mile and a half from the town.

The Red rear-guards still imbedded five miles south of the 38th parallel, splattered small arms and automatic weapons fire on the advancing infantrymen.

To the north, the U. S. heavy cruiser St. Paul carried the naval siege of Wonsan through the 37th consecutive day. It fired throughout Easter at bridges and troop concentrations some 90 miles north of the 38th parallel.

Negro's Newly-Bought Home Is Dynamited

ATLANTA, March 25. (AP)—A house purchased by a negro in a former all-white area of Atlanta was blasted by dynamite late last night, breaking several windows.

Radio Patrolmen C. Chafin and J. F. Johnson said the residence recently was bought by Scott Brooks, a negro, who was in the process of moving in. However, no one was living in the house at the time of the explosion.

Police said the area has been a scene of racial tension for several months, as negro residential areas expanded into sections formerly occupied only by white families.

Holiday Death Toll Nearing 200 Mark

[By The Associated Press]

At least 191 persons lost their lives in Easter weekend accidents.

Highway mishaps accounted for 135 of the deaths reported up to 10 p. m. EST, Sunday. Other accidents, such as fires and plane crashes, had caused 56 more.

Girl Marks 7th Birthday, Unaware She Is Doomed

LUDLOW, Mass., March 25. (AP)—Blonde, blue-eyed Beverly Green awakened today to one of the happiest days she may ever know.

It was Easter Sunday and her seventh birthday.

She could understand that. What she couldn't account for were the hundreds of cards and many gifts that came from people she didn't even know.

But they knew Beverly. They had read of her courageous fight against cancer of both legs.

They had heard she was doomed—and they wanted to make what may be her last birthday a happy one.

Doctors have advised her parents, ened parents. They realized $866.

Wanna Bet And Clean Up? Just Use A Little Science

WASHINGTON, March 25. (AP)—It's practically no problem at all to make $80,000 a year betting on basketball, football and baseball games. All that's needed is a little science.

Mrs. Sydney Brodson, wife of the Milwaukee bettor who told a Senate crime investigating committee he gambled $1,000,000 annually, explained her husband's successes this way:

"He makes a science out of betting."

Brodson talked freely with the crime committee yesterday. And Mrs. Brodson was just as willing to talk as he was. She told Brian Bell,

Jr., reporter for the Washington Star, how Brodson goes about his business.

"Say George Mikan's wife is going to have a baby," she said. "If it were going to happen the week of February 18, Syd would figure that Mikan might have his mind on other things during games of that week and would take that into consideration."

Mikan is a star with the professional Minneapolis Lakers.

"He's not what you call a bookmaker," Mrs. Brodson said of her husband, "because he doesn't bet on both sides. When he doesn't figure a game out right, he loses his bet."

New Induction Order Includes 38 Registrants

Thirty-eight area men have received notices to report within the next three weeks at Martinsburg, W. Va., for induction into the armed forces.

SECRETS OF CHARM

by JOHN ROBERT POWERS

AFTER you have attracted favorable attention to yourself by your well-groomed outward appearance, how long can you hold it?

Pleasing the eyes of your public is only a small part of achieving personal success. Your social magnetism depends on how well-rounded is your charm. Although youth seldom believes this statement, no mature woman seriously doubts it.

Personality Inspection
You probably look into your mirror a dozen times a day to check your looks. But how often do you make a critical inspection of your personality? You should evaluate yours frequently to estimate how fascinating you are as a conversationalist, how good as a listener, and how sympathetic as a companion.

The first requisite is at least a nodding acquaintance with what is going on in the world, and you can chalk one up for your appeal if you have it. But without it, you can't expect people to look forward to seeing you again and again. . . . it is evidence that you are too self-centered to be interesting.

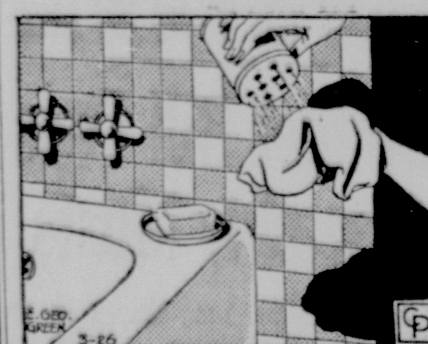

What you must have to be interesting is a storehouse of knowledge about the subjects and activities that concern other people. As a check on how well-stocked yours is at present, answer the following questions "yes" or "no".

1. Did you finish reading a book within the last four weeks? 2. Can you list the names of three books, with their authors, that have been popular in the last six months? 3. Do you read the news (world and national, as well as local) and the editorials in one newspaper each day? 4. Can you name two contemporary painters and poets of any nationality? 5. Do you dislike modern music? 6. Do you make it your business to read the fashion

Lawyers Endorse Judge Wright In Bedford

BEDFORD, Pa., March 25 — Unanimous endorsement by the Bedford County Bar Association has been offered Judge J. Colvin Wright for a second term on the Bedford County bench.

The endorsement marks the first time in 20 years that the association has been unanimous in its selection. Attorney Richard C. Snyder presented the resolution calling for the endorsement. The motion was immediately approved and seconded by D. Cress Reiley, dean of the county bar, and Harry C. James, a former judge.

The bar's unanimous endorsement practically assures Judge Wright of having no opposition in the primary or general elections later this year. Judge Wright first was elected in 1941 after winning the endorsement of both the Democrat and Republican parties in Bedford county.

Bedford and Huntingdon counties, prior to 1931, were part of one judicial district with associate judges on the bench. Bedford county's first judge, B. F. Madore, was appointed by former Gov. Gifford Pinchot. Judge James was the first jurist to be named to the bench by popular vote.

Mirror Of Your Mind

By LAWRENCE GOULD, Consulting Psychologist

Does loving your mother make you patriotic?

Answer: This is the suggestion of an eminent psychiatrist and certainly love of your country is not inborn in the sense that love for yourself is. It seems likely that the friendlier and more secure a baby finds the home that he grows up in, the more he'll tend, as he grows older, to widen his devotion to it so as to include his larger home or country. Conversely, it is doubtful where children of unhappy homes are likely to be patriotic. It is interesting that in "The Traitor," Mr. William L. Shirer depicts his central character as the child of a dominating and unloving mother.

Can any ailment be "completely cured"?

Answer: Probably not in the sense that your condition will be the same as if you had never been ill. Everything that happens has enduring consequences one way or the other, and doctors today prefer to use words like "arrested" or "remitting" rather than "cured." But in many cases, overcoming physical or mental illness leaves you better off than before—you may have developed an immunity which protects you from further infection, or may have developed a degree of insight (self-knowledge) which you would not otherwise have had a chance to gain.

Tammany Grows Weaker

Testimony before the Kefauver crime investigating committee has revealed not only the influence of professional gamblers in Tammany Hall but also the political weakness of Tammany in recent years. Former Mayor O'Dwyer of New York City explained that when he took office he starved Tammany of patronage in order to "clean it up." He testified further that he had succeeded in replacing the Tammany leader, E. V. Loughlin, by the mayor's own choice, Frank J. Sampson.

So O'Dwyer could hardly have been under obligation to Tammany for his nomination and election in 1945. His election was a walkover; he received 56 per cent of the votes to 21 per cent for the Republican-Liberal Party candidate and 20 per cent for an independent candidate. In 1949 the Irish-born former policeman was re-elected with less of a walkover. In 1941 he had been defeated by a slim margin by Mayor LaGuardia.

It has been almost 20 years since Tammany has been able to nominate and elect its own man as mayor of New York. It won in 1932 with John P. O'Brien, but in 1933 O'Brien ran third in an election won by LaGuardia. Last year Tammany withheld its nomination from Impellitteri, only to see him win the election as an independent candidate.

Tammany Hall is the Democratic organization only in the Manhattan borough of New York City, and one reason for its political eclipse has been the shift of population within the city. Forty years ago Manhattan had almost one-half of the city's inhabitants, with 45 per cent more than Kings (Brooklyn), five times more than the Bronx, eight times more than Queens (Long Island City). Today Manhattan has less than one-fourth the population of the city—Brooklyn has many more inhabitants, Queens and the Bronx almost as many. Tammany is now in no position to dictate to the party organizations in the other boroughs.

Another reason for the decline of Tammany has been its inability to produce a leader with personal qualities of domination. The last of the old Tammany "bosses" to rule with an iron hand was Charles J. Murphy, the patron of "Al" Smith. Murphy's control over 22 years was as absolute as had been that of his predecessors—Richard Croker, for 12 years; "Honest John" Kelly, for 14 years; "Boss" Tweed, for nine years. Tweed went to jail on conviction of graft and died there.

After Murphy died in 1924, the Hall fell under weaker leaders, who had shorter tenures. Some of these wielded no power over certain of the district leaders. Today it is doubtful if many New Yorkers know that Carmine DeSapio is the present leader of Tammany, whereas many or most know that "Ed" Flynn controls the Democratic organization in the Bronx.

Tammany suffered also from paucity of federal patronage under President Roosevelt. FDR had been an anti-Tammany force as a young member of the state legislature. As governor, he held hearings on an application that he use his power to remove James J. Walker as mayor of New York City for malfeasance and misfeasance in office. The questioning of Mayor Walker by Gov. Roosevelt in 1932 produced as widespread public interest as the questioning of former Mayor O'Dwyer by the Kefauver committee.

While the hearings on Walker were being held, he resigned and went to Europe. That injured Tammany, for "Jimmy" had been its idol. It suffered another blow in 1939, when District Attorney, now Governor, Dewey had James J. Hines, powerful Tammany district leader, convicted and jailed for complicity in illegal gambling in New York City.

Guest With Silver

If the forthcoming state visit of President Vincent Auriol of France fails to enliven the national scene with touches of supreme French elegance, it will not be because of lack of planning and equipment.

When the French liner Liberte docked at New York the other morning, aboard were cases of silver and champagne, under the charge of George Bouchet, chief of the French detective force which will assist American authorities in guarding the French President.

The silver and the wine are to be offered, under French auspices, at receptions in honor of Mr. Auriol. A former labor organizer, long a socialist member of the Chamber of Deputies, Mr. Auriol now lives in the semi-regal surroundings of the Elysee Palace, a once royal dwelling now the French White House.

The U. S. government can be elegant, when it pleases, even if a Washington hotel must be used for state banquets while the White House is being rebuilt. None but a French guest would think of bringing his own silver with him.

But it was France that invented and still specializes in protocol, which is an esoteric mode of precedence and conduct for the entertainments of all governments in the world, including that of the Soviet Union.

Who Has The Pennies?

Mrs. Nellie Taylor Ross, director of the United States Mint, wants the nation's hoarded pennies taken out of piggy banks, sugar bowls and bureau drawers and put in circulation. This, Mrs. Ross says, would make it unnecessary for the Treasury to mint more pennies, thus saving scarce copper.

The piggy bank reference is somewhat puzzling. Is there anywhere a kid so ignorant of fiscal facts that he lets a parsimonious aunt or uncle palm a penny off on him? Small Teddy and Little Ann know all they need to know about inflation. They save nickels and dimes, quarters and halves, now.

Adults, however, hold the penny in higher esteem. It is still an important medium of exchange. In combination with the nickel, dime and quarter, it is still a useful medium of exchange. Mrs. Ross reports more than 857,000,000 1-cent pieces have been coined since last June, and more are needed.

The sneers the penny gets should really be turned on the nickel. That coin has shrunk a lot, too. In shrinking it has given new usefulness to the penny. The nickel's job has just about been taken over by the dime. That seems to be washing up the nickel, but the penny will go rolling on. It's a nuisance, but its usefulness has not diminished.

It might as well be admitted. Most husbands are made to order—whether they like it or not.

Control Of House Dust

MANY allergic individuals are sensitive to house dust. Nasal congestion, wheezing, and sneezing develop whenever these particles are inhaled. Some persons are unable to tolerate the smallest amount; others are bothered only when the room is being swept or dusted.

House dust is a fine grayish powder formed by the deterioration of materials that are incorporated into furniture, clothing, and other household articles. Most of it stems from non living organic matter derived from bedding, furniture, draperies, carpets, and similar fabrics. Into this melee fall bits of sand, ashes, linen, aging feathers, animal dander, and dry bacteria. The germs come from the secretions expelled into the air by the occupants of the room thru coughing, sneezing, and talking. Molds and kopak also may be present in dust; in addition, these substances in themselves are frequent culprits in producing asthma and nasal allergy.

Because dust is so important as an irritant, allergists have formulated many rules to control the condition in the home. Dr. Albert H. Unger recommending that particles be kept at a minimum in the bedroom by covering the floor with linoleum or leaving it bare. Rugs may be used if they are washed at frequent intervals. Plastic draperies are substituted for those made of cloth and, if curtains are hung, they must be laundered every two weeks.

All beds should have rubber mattresses and pillows. An alternative is to cover or inclose the pillow or mattress in a plastic or rubber bag. This innovation frequently spells the difference between sleeping in comfort or wheezing all night. An acquaintance of mine always encountered congestion of the left nostril whenever he slept on the left side, and of the right nostril when he slept on that side. His wife purchased a pillow of sponge rubber and since then he never has been bothered. Whether his difficulty was due to the dust or to the feathers he did not know because he would never take the time for skin tests. This example is cited to demonstrate that it is the little things that count.

For allergic individuals whose symptoms are more severe, it may be necessary to dispense with upholstered furniture. Dusting with a dry cloth is taboo; it should be done with a dampened or oiled rag. The same can be said of sweeping; a wet mop is preferred. But a good vacuum cleaner with all attachments is best; this gadget is indispensable in a home where allergens abound. There are many machines on the market to remove dust from the air and one of the latest is an electronic device designed to attract any dust particles that come within its range. While this machine is efficient, it is hard on the pocketbook.

Rug pads also are a source of annoyance to individuals who are sensitive to dust. Even the best vacuum cleaner cannot collect and clean through a rug and its pad too.

A rubber pad or doing away with rugs entirely and substituting linoleum, is most satisfactory. The use of rubber in furniture is recommended and the bottom of chairs and divans should be boarded up with linoleum to discourage dust seepage. When drastic changes in the home cannot be made, the dust particles may be held down through the use of various chemicals and oils available for this purpose.

CALLED SOLES

M. J. writes: After removing calluses from the soles of my feet, they regrow in 36 to 48 hours. Would it be better if I scraped them every day?

REPLY
This might help but a better plan would be to attempt to remove the pressure causing the calluses. These lesions develop over areas where the skin is irritated or subjected to unusual pressure. Tight shoes and fallen arches are common offenders along this line.

INGROWN TOE NAIL
Mrs. R. writes: Is pulling out the nail the best treatment for ingrown toe nail?

REPLY
No. This procedure offers temporary relief but when the nail grows the structure assumes its deformed contours. Send a stamped, self-addressed envelope for leaflet on ingrown toe nail.

NUMB FINGERS
Mrs. K. writes: What is the treatment for scalenus anticus syndrome? My doctor says this condition is causing numbness of my fingers.

REPLY
Surgery is the only treatment. In this procedure the muscle is severed to relieve pressure on the nerves and blood vessels of the neck.

ACTH IN LUPUS
B. R. writes: Is ACTH of any value in treating the facial growths of lupus erythematosus?

REPLY
The remedy is worth trying because good results have been reported. The condition may return, however, when the drug is discontinued.

Dissension In Kremlin May Prevent War This Year; Russia Faced With Unrest In Satellite Countries; Eisenhower Supplies Confidence To Europe

Ed. Note—Drew Pearson has just returned to the United States. The following column, diagnosing the question of "will there be war?" was written just before he returned.

LONDON — The most important question I came to Europe to answer is: Will there be war this year? Will Moscow strike before Western Europe can be rearmed?

It still remains extremely difficult to answer that question, but my personal hunch is there will not be war.

The word "hunch" is used advisedly. For all the ingredients are on hand to make war. Moscow has ample troops on the Yugoslav border to attack overnight. Moscow also has ample troops in Germany plus heavy concentrations of the old Nazi Luftwaffe, plus important reserves of tanks and repair shops to throw us out of Germany and march to the English Channel in a couple of weeks.

Furthermore, Russian diplomats at the Paris big four discussions could be talking as Admiral Nomura talked just before Pearl Harbor, for the purpose of lulling us into a false sense of security.

That is why I used the word "hunch." For, all you can arrive at after traveling through Europe is a hunch. Perhaps also my opinion is influenced by a certain amount of personal optimism and the devout hope that there will be no war. It happens that, on Dec. 5, 1941, I predicted in a speech at Dayton, Ohio, that we would have war with Japan within two weeks. And I could be just as wrong now as I was right then.

However, here are my reasons for believing that Russia will not strike this year (and in my opinion if she does not strike this year, she will have much greater difficulty in waging war after that):

These Days

By GEORGE E. SOKOLSKY

They Planned It That Way

N O MATTER how much those who are moved by patriotism wish to defend the integrity of the dollar, they have to face facts. The dollar and all values calculated in dollars are reduced by the planned economy which has produced a steadily lowering standard of living and an increasing cost of all goods and services. This has effected every savings, every insurance policy, every bond, every inheritance. In a word, it is impossible to depreciate the value of a currency without affecting everything that is measured by that currency.

I regard this inflationary process as more serious and dangerous than any of our current involvements in war, because if it goes far enough the spirit of the people as well as the economic system can be destroyed. China, for instance, was defeated by inflation before that country could be conquered by Russia.

I want, in this connection, to quote from an exceedingly interesting article, entitled "A Planned Economy: Good or Bad?" by Miss Ruth Shallick, which appeared in "The Scientific Monthly" in November, 1950:

"... Except for the 1930s, each decade (in the United States) has witnessed more people producing a greater volume (and better quality) of goods per employee than the previous one. Over the past 50 years, the standard of living for all had improved miraculously with a decline of more than one-third in the number of working hours per week, with real purchasing power per hour increasing threefold..."

Then Miss Shallick, who is economist at the Institute of Paper Chemistry, says:

"... Even the 'government planning' during (the 1930's) and since, which has created more problems (especially deficit financing) than it has solved, has not dispelled the strong feeling, born of the depression, that the government should guarantee certain economic rights, even at the expense of transforming the economy and eliminating economic freedom. And, moreover, this attitude seems to prevail despite a new critical attitude toward collectivist economic planning in the Soviet Union brought about by the postwar belligerent and openly imperialistic Soviet policy.

"Two reasons may be given for this seeming paradox. One is the insecurity caused by the last war and the fear of another. The second is that many government officials have found it politically expedient to promise all sorts of things that could only be delivered, even in a small degree, by having complete power over the economy. Those who are asking for state power to control the economy (or, as they say, to establish the welfare state) are doing so paradoxically in the interests of saving free enterprise. But why should the state not have complete control over the economy?"

In a word, can we have half-socialism or 20 per cent socialism without becoming a socialized society? Actually, it cannot be done no matter who tries it and so far as the people are

Matter Of Fact

By STEWART ALSOP

Man Hunt

WASHINGTON

THE STORY of the last days of Vlado Clementis, former Foreign Minister of Czechoslovakia, before he was arrested as a traitor can now be told. It is a revealing story, for it demonstrates dramatically the extent to which hidden terror and the fear of sudden betrayal now pervade the whole Soviet empire.

Clementis has been a fanatical Communist all his life. Yet in the course of his Communist career he made one mistake which has now proved his undoing. For a few months he was a "premature anti-fascist," making anti-Nazi broadcasts from London to his own country, while Hitler and Stalin were still formally allied. This was deviationism, and the Kremlin never forgives.

Late in 1949, while Clementis was in this country representing his government at the United Nations, reliable reports that the Kremlin had demanded the liquidation of Clementis were published in this space. Clementis denounced these reports as lies, and was photographed in arm with a smiling Andrei Vishinsky. Clementis was in fact wholly aware that he was in danger. But Czech President Klement Gottwald, a close personal friend of long standing, had sent his wife to New York with assurances that if Clementis returned he would be spared. Trusting his friend's word, Clementis made the fateful decision to go back.

Planned To Escape

He was soon dismissed as Foreign Minister, which he must have expected. But he was not arrested. He was installed instead in a minor job as economic adviser in the state bank. Yet as the Kremlin, acting through such trusted agents as party secretary Rudolf Slansky, tightened its grip on Czechoslovakia, the protection of Gottwald became increasingly worthless. The Kremlin is never satisfied with half measures, and early this year word came to Clementis that he had been marked for the slaughter. He could save himself only by escaping.

He and his brother-in-law, Dr. Daniel Okali, Slovak Minister of the Interior and also a lifelong Communist, hatched a plan. Ostensibly to discuss the export of wood pulp with Okali, Clementis would fly to Bratislava, the Slovak capital. Okali had a government plane at his disposal, and in this the two men would escape to Western Germany, with Tito's Belgrade their ultimate objective.

At the last moment, Clementis became aware that he was being watched. He changed his plan, evading the secret police and taking a slow train for Bratislava, instead of Poland and Russia.

My Ukrainian informant explained that this was because many people in Western Russia, probably of Polish birth, had tried to escape into Poland. Also he said that when Ukrainian underground fighters got into trouble in their own country, hitherto they had escaped into Poland or Czechoslovakia. Now, however, these borders are closed and it is more difficult to dodge the Russian police.

He also reported that Chinese work battalions had been brought all the way from across Siberia to work in Russia.

Bearing out these reports of satellite unrest, U. S. authorities have received word of two Red army divisions being rushed to Czechoslovakia and Rumania, with two other divisions sent to the Ukraine.

Will Europe Fight?

Regarding the second big question asked about Europe—will she fight if attacked?—Here is my best answer:

1. The areas which will fight immediately and fight well are Turkey, Yugoslavia and Berlin. All three are close to the iron curtain and all three are ready to fight at the drop of a hat. The Greek army, though small, is also in good shape, but the Greek people would not resist long if attacked by Russia.

2. The rest of Europe is torn by so-called neutralism—a desire to "sit this one out," a feeling that the United States and Russia are the only nations which want war and the others don't want to be caught in between.

Of the countries I visited, Italy would not fight—first because under the peace treaty she has no army to fight with; second, because the war-torn Italians have had enough of fighting.

In Southern Germany, in fact, in most of Germany except Berlin, the people also would not fight—even if armed. And they don't want to be armed. The worst mistake our military men and Senate isolationists ever made was to talk about arming a completely unwilling Germany. This talk has now given the Germans a bargaining power they never had before and they are making good use of it.

France and England, on the other hand, will fight if given hope and confidence. Otherwise they will not. In brief, they are not going to fight if only eight divisions are available to resist a Russian army of limitless manpower certain to overwhelm them.

Therefore, what our European friends need most is confidence. They need the realization that if they fight they can win, that opposition will not be futile.

That is what General Eisenhower is trying to give them now—confidence. That is what the landing of American troops in Europe—on a limited scale—will give them. Personally, I am against sending a big land army to Europe. But a limited number of American troops will give a tremendous boost to European morale and instill that most necessary of all ingredients for European-American cooperation and defense—confidence.

(Copyright, 1951, By The Bell Syndicate, Inc.)

of the plane. The train stopped over for some hours at Brno, near the Czech border, and at Brno Clementis must have felt the noose tightening around his neck. For while waiting to continue his journey, Clementis got word that Okali had been arrested as a traitor in Bratislava.

When he heard this, Clementis must have known that he had become the object of a manhunt. At first, he tried to cross the border on his own, with the intention of making his way through the Bohemian forest into Soviet Austria, and thence into Vienna. But the net was drawn too tight, and to cross the border without help proved impossible. Evidently, Clementis decided to play a last desperate card. The local Communist leader in the smaller town of Znam, near the border, was an old comrade in arms from the pre-war days. Perhaps he might help.

He reached Znam undetected, and saw his friend in his office in the morning. His friend stood by him, and told him to return at 5 o'clock that afternoon, when arrangements for his escape into East Austria would be complete. Clementis passed the intervening hours at a motion picture, and returned promptly at 5 o'clock.

Greeted By Police

This was the end of the trail. His Communist friend had been watched and had already been arrested. In his office, Clementis found the secret police waiting for him. President Gottwald, all real power now stripped from him, promptly denounced Clementis, to whom he had been closer than any other man, as a traitor and a spy, in order to save his own skin. Thus the end came for Vlado Clementis, who is dead now or as good as dead.

This story, which is certainly accurate in outline, of the last days of the former Czech Foreign Minister, is worth pondering, especially now when it so often seems that moral decay has overtaken the American republic. The American system may produce its Costellos, but at least it produces no spectacle comparable to that of a man who had been Foreign Minister only a few months before zigzagging frantically, like a rabbit pursued by hounds, in a desperate effort to escape his country. Surely the endless bloody fermenting out of old Communist after old Communist which has been going on for so many years now argues a terrible weakness in the power structure of the Communist world. Surely the fear which Clementis must have felt as his pursuers closed in on him must be felt also, and always, by his pursuers, whose turn is so likely to come next.

Business And Colleges

By ROGER W. BABSON

BABSON PARK, Fla., March 25

—Closer cooperation between business and education may save our private institutions of higher learning and, at the same time, bring about increased profits for business. Education and business, working hand in hand, can also make themselves of greater value to the country in this national emergency.

Business Needs The College

One of the soundest ways to preserve private enterprise is to give financial aid to young and needy potential business executives studying in colleges which are especially appreciative of American business and sympathetic to its problems. Most professional colleges of business have this point of view. Young men therein educated are of especial value to business. They not only learn specialized techniques; but they also acquire a sound philosophy of American business. Business needs such young men.

Business also needs the brains and research facilities of the colleges. Many small and middle-sized companies cannot hope, by themselves, to keep pace with the research of big business; but by pooling their efforts with the colleges, their usefulness and profits can be increased. Business provides the funds; the colleges provide the research laboratories.

The College Needs Business

In these times of partial mobilization and declining enrollments, the college needs the help of business. Education is the bulwark of democracy. If America is to win the battle of ideologies, it will be by brains—not by brawn. The survival of private enterprise is, therefore, closely tied to the survival of our educational institutions. To survive, our colleges greatly need the financial support of business, which should feel obligated to help keep our system of higher education strong.

Colleges today are in a precarious position. They are victims of war-time economy. With decreased income from tuitions and inflated costs of operation, plus being buildings-and-land poor, with income from endowments inadequate, colleges are having rough going. Some are already operating in the red. Many more will lose money next year. A cooperative venture between business and education is, therefore, an intelligent solution to many of the problems of both groups.

Ways of Cooperation

Many colleges are already doing a vast amount of technical research for government and business: Boston University in optics; Georgia Tech in aeronautical engineering; University of California in goods; University of Wisconsin in naval research; Stanford in radio; Michigan State in fuel; Massachusetts Institute of Technology in manufacturing; Babson Institute in marketing—to mention a very few.

Other possible areas of cooperation are workshop seminars for top management. These are custom-built courses of short duration to meet specific industry and company problems in consumer research, marketing, advertising, product development, taxes, etc. Refresher group conferences for foremen, sales managers, bankers, and accountants can do much to keep both business and education on their toes.

Financial Engineering

Yale University has pointed the way in research in labor relations with its Labor-Management Center. Whole new areas are practically unexplored—such as atomic warfare, business decentralization and traffic problems. Other areas are job valuation, job satisfaction, corporation conduct, public relations, organizational communication, corporate finance and statistics.

The subject of taxes alone offers rich possibilities for business-college cooperation. Taxes have become far greater than a legal question. We have in the U.S.A. one of the strongest potential working teams any country has ever known: the research facilities of education and the wealth facilities of business. In harness together they can become invaluable helpmates. Now is the time to build our team and keep our country strong.

Try And Stop Me

By BENNETT CERF

"All those who want to go to heaven will kindly rise," said the Minister of a small Maine congregation—possibly to make sure everybody was awake. All but one man in a pew near the rear rose promptly. "Hm-m-m," mused the minister. "Now anybody who wants to go to Hades will please stand up." The congregation tittered and stole a look at the member who had remained seated earlier. Again he didn't move.

The Minister addressed him directly. "Am I to understand,

Brother Caldwell, that you want to go neither to heaven nor the other place?" "That's it exactly," was the reply. "I like it right here."

Ma Ingram, who lived in a little cabin in the Ozarks, was sometimes asked by passing motorists how far it was to the nearest town. She liked to answer, "Pa figures it's about twelve miles thar and fourteen back. That's on account of him walkin' straighter goin' than comin'."

Fine Hurling Could Make Bostons Factor In 1951 Race

EDITOR'S NOTE—This is the 11th in a series of articles on the 1951 prospects of the major league baseball teams.

By WALTER L. JOHNS
Central Press Sports Editor
BRADENTON, Fla. — When you talk to Billy Southworth, very capable manager of the Boston Braves, you are not led to believe that the Beantown entry, fourth last year, is a pennant contender this season.

However, other officials in camp (and perhaps Billy, too) believe they will be in it all the way this year.

Any club which has three pitchers of the collective caliber of

Johnny Sain, Warren Spahn and Vernon Bickford, who won 60 games last year, must be reckoned with, for pitching is the key to all pennant hopes.

And the Braves, sorely in need of a fourth starter last year, have come up with two helpers whom Billy talks about as being the difference.

The two, either one of which may be that fourth regular fliker, are big Jim Wilson, a righthander who won 24 games for Seattle in the Pacific Coast league last year, and Matt Surkont, an older once in the St. Louis Cardinals' chain who won 18 for Sacramento and then turned in five victories for the Braves at the end of the season.

Billy the Kid is looking over some other hill help, too. Best of these may be Art Fowler, 18-12 with

Atlanta last year, and Charley Gorin, a University of Texas star who joined Atlanta late last season for pitching is the key to all pennant hopes.

"We're better than we were last year at this time," Billy says.

"We have two more pitchers who we think will help and we've added another catcher who will help us out both behind the plate and at bat."

Before we go any further, we might introduce you to the catcher he is talking about. He is Edward (Ebbie) St. Claire, a 220-pound guy who has hands like hams, to reiterate an old expression.

To accent the size of this fellow's hands a photographer friend of ours, with big mitts, almost lost those same mitts in a handshake with St. Claire.

"That fellow," says Billy the Kid in talking about the rookie catcher, "has drawn more favorable comment in camp than any other player."

St. Claire should help the catching, for Del Crandall, who was No. 2 to Walker Cooper last year, has gone into the Army. St. Claire also hit a very respectable .280 for Atlanta, polling 19 homers and batting in 107 runs.

KEEPING UP WITH HOLLYWOOD

By LOUELLA PARSONS

HOLLYWOOD, March 25 (INS)—England will get a look at Judy Canova in July. Her boss, Papa

Yates, head of Republic, has given her permission to go to London to star in "Hot Heiress," a story that Judy, herself, and Jack Townley have scripted.

Townley wrote "Scatterbrain," "Sis Hopkins" and "Honeychile" for the gal who made pitfalls pay off. Judy will stay in character in "Hot Heiress" by playing an American girl who tries to crash Europe's social creme de creme. Both English and American players will be in the cast.

Judy takes her summer vacation from radio in July, so she will have 12 weeks to remain in Europe. Before she goes she will star in "Oklahoma Annie" for Republic. Jack Elliott, who wrote "It's So Nice To Have A Man Around The House," goes along to London to arrange her songs.

How would you like to see Clark Gable, he-man of the screen, and voluptuous Jane Russell teamed in a movie? That may well happen! Howard Hughes wants to borrow Cyd Charisse to co-star with her husband, Tony Martin, who, on the strength of "Two Tickets To Broadway," gets another movie at RKO. The price M. G. M. is asking is Jane Russell. Whether or not Hughes will agree is another chapter but it wouldn't hurt Jane to be in Gable's next picture, "Lone Star" and it wouldn't hurt Clark to have her.

I can tell Bing Crosby that Dixie has been shopping for him and the boys in Paris. One of my correspondents writes me that Dixie has visited a well known shop and bought some gay wearing apparel to bring home.

Bing once told me that Dixie is like a kid about buying presents. "She starts shopping for Christmas months in advance, and she wraps every gift herself," Bing said.

Bing may do a walk-on for "Angels And The Pirates" at M. G. M. Same sort of thing he does for Bob Hope.

June Haver, who went on suspension because she did not want to do "Friendly Island," will be taken off suspension and put into "A WAC In Her Life" with William Lundigan and Frank Fay.

This picture, not a musical, is a comedy about a G. I. who returns from the war to find his wife supporting herself by renting a boarding house. It starts in early April.

June was in the party that went to the film festival in Uruguay. She is now in Hollywood and will resume work immediately.

Snapshots of Hollywood collected at random:

A former Hollywood beauty, Elsie Hunt, is the lady who has taken Andre Dubonnet away from Sugar Heiress Dorothy Spreeles. The latter lady is now suing Dubonnet over an icebox.

Aren't Hillary Brooke, blonde actress, and John Shelton, Kathryn Grayson's first husband, planning to say "I do" in June?

Igor Troubetzkoy is expected to arrive in this country over the weekend. His attorney, Melvin Bell, will keep the Prince in hiding—maybe in Mexico—until the Barbara Hutton financial arrangement is worked out.

Russell Nype has a new girl friend. She is Betsy Von Furstenberg, beautiful New York socialite, and she's the first gal Nype has dated since he became famous in "Call Me Madam."

Gloria Swanson is being squired about to New York parties by Ivan Patovitch, of Vogue. He was once Marlene Dietrich's favorite escort.

For the second night in a row Franchot Tone had his ex-wife, Jean Wallace, out. How wonderful for the two children if these two would reconcile.

That's all today. See you tomorrow.

Eddie Collins Taken By Death; 'Y' Tourney Opens Tonight

Red Sox Vice President And Hall of Fame Member Dies In Boston Hospital

Famous 2nd Baseman Of A's, Chisox Played 25 Seasons, Hit .333

BOSTON, March 25 (AP)—Eddie Collins, one of baseball's immortals, died tonight in Peter Bent Brigham hospital. He was 63 years old.

His career as player, manager and executive with the Philadelphia Athletics, Chicago White Sox and the Red Sox covered a span of 45 years. He was vice president of the Boston Red Sox at the time of death.

Collins had been under the care of physicians since he suffered a cerebral hemorrhage last August 10. His fighting spirit, however, carried him in out of hospitals at intervals.

A member of the Hall of Fame, Collins was recognized as one of baseball's greatest second basemen. A graduate of Columbia University, he started his major league baseball career with the Philadelphia Athletics in 1906.

He was named vice president and treasurer and business manager of the Red Sox in 1933.

Under his general management the Sox won their first pennant in 28 years in 1946. They lost the world series to the St. Louis Cardinals.

Born in Millerton, N. Y., May 2, 1887, Eddie Collins had a lifetime batting average of .333 after 25 years of active baseball playing. He was elected to baseball's Hall of Fame in 1939.

He was second baseman of Connie Mack's famous "100,000 infield" which was broken up after the 1914 world series when the Boston Braves stunned the baseball world by taking four straight from that great Philadelphia team.

Sold For $45,000

After that season "Cocky," as he was known to some oldtimers, was sold to the Chicago White Sox for the then terrific price of $45,000.

Collins first came to the attention of Mack in 1906 while playing summer ball at Rockville, Conn., a stunt which eventually cost him his baseball captaincy at Columbia University.

Late that 1906 season, having agreed to play for the Athletics after his graduation from Columbia, Collins practiced with the A's and made a western swing with the club under the name of Sullivan. He played six games at third base and shortstop.

After he returned to college that year Columbia officials showed Collins they knew he had played summer ball and he was declared ineligible.

He completed his courses before reporting to the Athletics meanwhile acting as baseball coach, reportedly Columbia's first undergraduate varsity mentor.

Played In Six Series

Called by many veterans "the king of second basemen," Collins participated in six world series, four with the A's and two with the Chicago White Sox. His batting average for the six series was .328.

He wound up his playing career on the field where he had begun it, in Philadelphia. Before going to Boston in 1933 when Tom Yawkey purchased the Boston Red Sox.

Yawkey, with Collins as his general manager and adviser, revived the once proud Sox and gave the city its first world series representative in 28 years when the 1946 post-war edition raced to the American League pennant.

When Collins first went with the A's Mack tried him at third, short, and in the outfield before placing him at second, where he became a regular in 1908, one of baseball's most brilliant.

Member Of Famed Infield

During those years as a member of the 100,000 infield—Stuffy McInnis at first, Jack Barry, present Holy Cross coach, at short, and Frank (Homerun) Baker at third—Collins' lowest batting average was .273 and his lowest fielding average was .940. Both marks were compiled in 1906, his first as a regular performer.

He played some marvelous ball in his years with the White Sox and was one of the members of that club not involved in the 1919 World Series scandal.

He became playing manager of the White Sox in 1925 and led the team through 1926 when he was released.

Six weeks after he was let go in Chicago, Connie Mack signed "Cocky" and immediately named him captain.

Even in 1927 when he was 40 years old and played in 95 games Collins was one of the league's sharpest competitive players. He used his knowledge in place of his slowing legs, positioning himself strategically and making every move count.

He appeared in only 36 games in 1928, mostly as a pinch hitter and after appearing in three games in 1930 as a pinch hitter for Connie Mack he went on the inactive list, becoming a coach.

Joined Boston In 1933

Connie released him in 1933 so he could join Tom Yawkey in assuming command of the Boston Red Sox.

One of his two sons, Eddie, Jr., had a brief fling with the Athletics as an outfielder and later was signed as administrative assistant in the Philadelphia National League Phillies farm system.

Eddie's other son, Paul, is an Episcopalian minister at Troy, N. Y.

Kansas State And Kentucky Meet Tuesday

NCAA Title At Stake In Minneapolis Tilt; Aggies, Illinois Lose

NEW YORK, March 25 (AP)—Kentucky will meet Kansas State in Minneapolis Tuesday for the NCAA basketball championship, and the man you'd expect most to know couldn't make up his mind today about the outcome.

"Kentucky is bigger and more aggressive," said Illinois' coach Harry Combes, "but Kansas State, I think, is smoother and a better shooting club."

The No. 1 nationally ranked Kentuckians edged Illinois, 76-74, in a movie-like thriller last night to win the eastern tournament at Madison Square Garden.

Just ten days ago the same Illinois team was swamped, 91-72, in a practice game by Kansas State, winner of the western tournament last night at Kansas City. K-State smothered Oklahoma A. and M., the country's No. 2 team in the final Associated Press poll, 68-44.

"We played much better against Kentucky than against Kansas State," Combes said. "But they are two strong clubs—both fast and with a lot of drive. I look for a close, high-scoring game."

"If I thought Kansas State could shoot as they did against us they hit 43 per cent of their shots—then I'd have to string along with Kansas State."

"But if they aren't hitting well, I'd have to pick Kentucky on its size, poise and aggressiveness."

Leave By Plane

Both Kentucky and Illinois left by air today for Minneapolis where they will engage in the final program Tuesday night, Illinois, the Big Ten champion, will play Oklahoma A. and M. in the consolation game at 9 p. m. (EST) with the championship tilt to follow.

A crowd of 16,425 was brought to its tiptoes by the stirring basketball duel waged in the eastern finals by Kentucky and Illinois.

The game was decided in the final 18 seconds on a driving layup shot by Shelby Linville, Kentucky forward from Middletown, Ohio, but that was only one of the numerous climaxes that piled on each other during the fast, hard-driving battle.

The score was tied 13 times and went down to the last three minutes with Kentucky, having battled back from a 32-39 deficit at the half, leading 70-69.

Spivey Fouls Out

It was at this point that Kentucky's seven-foot All-America pivot star, Bill Spivey, went to the sidelines with five personal fouls and 28 points, just four shy of the tournament record.

Linville, a regular forward who had been sitting out four personals on the bench, was rushed into the breach. Coach Adolph Rupp of Kentucky never made a more timely move.

In three drives down the floor, Linville hit for three "clutch" baskets that kept the Wildcats even at 72-72, 74-74 and then clinched the victory with time running out fast.

St. John's of Brooklyn won the eastern third place consolation, beating North Carolina State, 71-59. At Kansas City, Washington won over Brigham Young in the consolation, 80-67.

Coast Cagers Cop AAU Title

San Francisco Tops Colorado Five, 76-55

DENVER, March 25 (AP)—The championship victory of San Francisco Stewart Chevrolet in the 44th annual National AAU Basketball Tournament last night may soon be forgotten but the fans will remember for decades the 65-foot shot by Irish Johnny O'Boyle that won a third semifinal game.

O'Boyle, a Brooklyn kid in his junior year at Colorado A. & M. College, turned Denver City Auditorium into pandemonium Friday night when he pushed the ball almost three-fourths the length of the floor in the final second to beat the strong Peoria, Ill., Caterpillar Diesel 59-57.

One observer quipped: "I haven't seen one like that since I quit reading the pulp magazines."

The win sent the Colorado A. & M. team, entered as the Poude Valley Creamery of Fort Collins, Colo., into the finals against the San Francisco Chevrolet. The west coast team dethroned the perennial champion Phillips 66ers of Bartlesville, Okla., in a three-overtimes semifinal thriller, 66-63.

Those were the decisive games in the week-long tourney between 41 of the finest AAU teams from 22 states. Actually the San Franciscans won the title when they knocked over the Phillips club.

The weary Colorado College lads, lacking reserves, were tromped by the veteran AAUers from California, 76-55 in the anti-climatic finals. Phillips wound up in third place with a 72-55 frolic over Peoria.

WMI All-Star Berths Go To Barton, Central

Players of Barton High School and Central High School, Lonaconing, grabbed all five players on the annual WMI League team selected by the six coaches.

Arnold Tichnell, Tim Clark and Bill Kirk, of Barton, and Kenneth Burt and Don McKenzie, Central, were the players named on the first team.

Fort Hill's championship team failed to place a man on the first team. In fact this is the first year that a Cumberland school failed to gain a berth on the team.

Four Fort Hill players—Lynn Beightol, Ronnie Cage, Eddie Landis and George McGregor, and John Eversole, AHS, and Don Blank, Beall, made the second team.

Carey Named Scout

VERO BEACH, Fla., March 25 (AP)—John Carey, former big league pitcher, today was appointed scout of the eastern states area by the Brooklyn baseball club.

Carey, who hurried for the Philadelphia Athletics, succeeds Rex Bowen. He will coach Delaware, Maryland, Virginia, West Virginia, North Carolina and Washington, D. C. in quest of prospective Dodger talent.

Bowen is with the Pittsburgh Pirates.

Hairston Fights Gavilan Friday

Match At Garden Tops Week's Card

NEW YORK, March 25 (AP)—Kid Gavilan, Gene Hairston, Irish Bobby Murphy, Chuck Hunter, Rocky Marciano and featherweight champion Sandy Saddler brighten up the fight picture this week.

Gavilan, the Cuban welterweight contender, and Hairston, the crack young middleweight, clash in a return round bout in Madison Square Garden Friday night. Hairston, a deaf-mute, won a split decision over the Cuban Flash last October. The New York Negro is unbeaten in his last 13 fights.

Gavilan, after one bad spell, has moved back on the winning track and is determined to avenge the defeat.

Their bout will be broadcast and telecast.

The Wednesday night radio-TV network show will come out of Detroit where Chuck Hunter of Cleveland will tangle with Detroit's Ray Barnes in a middleweight ten rounder. Hunter moved back into the limelight last Wednesday when he shellacked Jimmy Beau.

Saddler swings back into action Tuesday night in Los Angeles when he faces Lauro Salas of Mexico in a non-title ten rounder.

Murphy, the colorful San Diego light heavyweight, moves to Milwaukee Monday night for a ten rounder with Joe Blackwood of New York.

Marciano, up-and-coming young heavyweight contender, will meet Art Henri of New York at Providence, R. I., tomorrow night.

Art Doering's 209 Tops Field At Greensboro

Leads By Four Strokes With 18 Holes To Play, Jack Burke Is 2nd

GREENSBORO, N. C., March 25 (INS)—Art Doering, a 24-year-old Virginian who has picked up only $800 playing golf this year, widened his lead to four strokes in today's third round of the $10,000 Greater Greensboro Open Tournament.

The unemployed professional from Richmond fired a three-under-par 68 for a 54-hole total of 209 over the Starmount Country Club course.

With only 18 more holes to play against the field of 160, Doering was in sight of his first major tournament victory.

In second place was Jack Burke, Jr., of Houston, Tex., who banged out the best game of the day, a four-under-par 67 made possible mostly by an eagle three on the 18th.

Burke's 213 virtually secured second place for him, since a third-place deadlock held Jack Shields, of Cedar Rapids, Ia., and Robert Divencenzo, of Buenos Aires, at 215.

They both shot 69's today.

Marty Furgol, of Long Beach, Cal., the tournament leader after the first round, continued to fall away and was next at 216.

The more famous entries were all trailing the field badly. Defending champion Sam Snead was 10 strokes back of the leader at 219. Jim Frier, winner of three straight Florida tournaments a few weeks ago, was in a four-way tie for sixth spot at 217.

And Lloyd Mangrum, golf's leading money-maker this year, was out of the running with a 220.

Frier's tie at 217 was with Bob Toski, of Northampton, Mass.; Johnny Bulla, of Verona, Pa., and Hobart Manley, a young amateur from Savannah, Ga., who carded a 68 today.

Oklahoma Aggies Defeated, 68-44

KANSAS CITY, March 25 (AP)—Kansas State, noted as a scoring team, gets its first crack at the NCAA basketball championship because of its ability to coordinate brilliant defense with a balanced attack.

A 68-44 victory over Oklahoma A. and M. in the western NCAA play-offs here last night, Kansas State over Illinois in the eastern tourney, for the national crown at Minneapolis Tuesday.

Coach Jack Gardner's Big Seven champions, rated 4th in the final Associated Press poll, spread their scoring on a team basis as usual, but it was their furious ball-hawking, rebounding and overall defense that knocked out Oklahoma A. and M., the nation's No. 2 outfit, early.

Oklahoma A. and M. went almost eight minutes without a field goal. There was another stretch of four and one-half minutes that the Oklahomans, national champions in 1945 and '46, couldn't get a point of any kind.

And in the meantime, Kansas State, with every player on its starting lineup getting a field goal inside of the first seven minutes, was racing to a 37-14 halftime lead.

Oklahoma A. and M., which lost star Norman Pilgrim on the 3-year eligibility ruling before the tournament and was crippled by an early injury to Keith Smith against Kansas State, will meet Illinois for third place in the national finals at Minneapolis Tuesday.

Pirates Explode, Trim Chisox, 9-7

Westlake, Murtaugh Wallop Home Runs

SAN BERNARDINO, Calif., March 25 (AP)—The Pittsburgh Pirates exploded for seven runs in the first two innings today as they hammered out a 9-7 exhibition win over the American League's Chicago White Sox.

Outfielder Wally Westlake accounted for four Pirate runs, two of them on a long homer in the second when the Bucs scored four runs. Danny Murtaugh, former second baseman who made his debut at third base, also hit a round tripper for the Pirates, his blow coming with none aboard in the third.

The White Sox, who collected nine hits to 12 for the Pirates, scored single runs in each of the first three innings, adding two more in the fifth and two in the eighth. The final markers came on Phil Masi's homer. It was the only hit off young Bill Koski who hurled the last three innings. Koski struck out the side in the ninth. Score:

CUBS WIN ON HOMER

LOS ANGELES, March 25 (AP)—Bill Serena clouted a ninth inning home run today to give the Chicago Cubs a 10-8 decision over the St. Louis Browns.

The Browns made three homers, two by Don Lenhardt, in an assault on three of the Cubs' experienced Triple A rookies—Cal McLish, Eddie Chandler and Omar Low. Score:

ST. LOUIS (A) 8, CHICAGO (N) 10

2 Gls Mourned As Dead Are PWs

PITTSBURGH, March 25. (AP)—The Easter story of the Resurrection took on new meaning for two Western Pennsylvania families of servicemen today.

A Butler County clergyman and a Washington, Pa., mother learned the 19-year-old sons they had mourned as lost on Korean battlefields actually are prisoners of war.

The Rev. Harlan M. Miller, Chancery, said he recognized his son's face in a group picture published by newspapers. The picture showed a group of a dozen Pennsylvanians in the hands of Red forces in Korea.

The photograph, which came from Peiping, China, lists the man as Wally Miller of Pittsburgh. Despite the different spelling, the Millers think the picture is that of their oldest son. He was reported missing in action Dec. 1.

The other message of hope came when the Pittsburgh Sun-Telegraph notified Mrs. Antoinette Razvoza that she was about to hear from the Marine son she believed had been killed almost four months ago.

The newspaper had learned that a letter from her son, Sgt. Richard J. Razvoza, a prisoner of war, had been received by a Denver, Colo., family which received a packet of 23 letters from prisoners for forwarding.

JOHN E. LANCASTER

Survivors include his widow, Mrs. Janet McMurdo Lancaster; two daughters, Mrs. Paul Rank, Cumberland, and Miss Margaret Lancaster, at home; two sisters, Mrs. William Martin and Mrs. Thomas William, Lonaconing.

The body is at the Hafer Funeral Home where a service will be conducted tomorrow at 2 p. m.

Today's Sermonette

"Father, into thy hands I commend my spirit." So we too can trust God in our darkest hours. Luther's enemies once taunted him, "When the whole world is against you, church, state, people, where will you be then?" "Why, then, as now," replied Luther, "in the hands of Almighty God." The risen Christ assures us, that when the whole world seems against us, we too can trust ourselves, our all, to God's Almighty Hand.

Christ is alive forevermore. Then our faith in Him as the Saviour is vindicated. He is the Son of God. The disciples had believed this. They asserted, "Thou art the Christ, the Son of the living God." They believed in His kingdom of love and righteousness. But that was all before Good Friday. Afterward they said, "We trusted it had been He that would redeem Israel." On Easter morning they knew. He is God's Son, the Saviour of mankind. He is "declared with power to be the Son of God by the resurrection from the dead."

Christ is alive forevermore. Then our sin is forgiven. Paul said, "If Christ be not risen, ye are yet in your sins . . . but Christ is risen." He came to give His life a "ransom for many," and the resurrection assures us that the ransom was acceptable unto God. Think of the joy this brought to the disciples. Peter had denied Him, and they had all forsaken Him. Now He extended to them His wounded hands and said, "Peace be unto you." And ever since repentant sinners have looked into the face of the risen Christ and heard His forgiving words, "Peace be unto you."

Christ is alive forevermore. Then death is vanquished. It is not extinction, but an instrument in the hand of God, a transition, a gateway to heaven. Christ said, "I go to prepare a place for you . . . I will come again and receive you unto myself." Today we know what He meant. Because He lives; we too shall live; we shall be with Him, and with our loved ones who are with Him.

Sometimes we are so strong and healthy, and our lives so filled with worldliness, that we are prone to say, "Heaven does not interest me." Ah, my friend, when someone dearer to you than life is mortally ill, when you yourself come in sight of the valley from which none return, you will find that nothing else really matters. As long as love is love, as long as one human heart cleaves to another, it matters more than anything else in all the world that Christ conquered death, and brought immortality to life.

Recently a number of the bodies of young American soldiers who had been killed in Korea were returned to their homes for burial. Think what Easter means to each particular family. Is there anything to heal their hurt? Yes, thank God, Easter brings to them, to all of us, the message that life transcends this mortal body; that "if our earthly house of this tabernacle is dissolved, we have a building of God, a house not made with hands, eternal in the heavens."

Christ is alive forevermore. Then He is here with us now. "He is nearer than breathing, closer than hands and feet." Read again the Easter story. Listen and be still. The risen Christ will come to you. You will know that life in Christ is eternal. You will be able to say with Paul, "I live, yet not I, but Christ liveth in me."

This is the Easter message: He is alive forevermore.

Johnston's Warning

WASHINGTON, March 25. (AP)—Economic Stabilizer Eric Johnston said today that if business profits or farm prices keep going up, or if laboring men ask for wage raises beyond the present 10 per cent limit, it could "blow the roof off inflation."

In a television interview, he again used tough language as a part of a developing government drive to combat signs of a public letdown in the anti-inflation fight.

"End Use" Self-Evident

WASHINGTON, March 25. (AP)—The Commerce Department said today an exporter to British Hong Kong who failed to state on the form the "end use" of his shipment would not have to do so after all.

A department appeals board has decreed "the end use is self-evident."

The shipment was 100 dozen dusters.

The photograph, which came from Peiping, China, lists the man as Wally Miller of Pittsburgh. Despite the different spelling, the Millers think the picture is that of their oldest son. He was reported missing in action Dec. 1.

The other message of hope came when the Pittsburgh Sun-Telegraph notified Mrs. Antoinette Razvoza that she was about to hear from the Marine son she believed had been killed almost four months ago.

The newspaper had learned that a letter from her son, Sgt. Richard J. Razvoza, a prisoner of war, had been received by a Denver, Colo., family which received a packet of 23 letters from prisoners for forwarding.

Coroner's Probe Due Wednesday In Durbin Death

Rites Are Planned Here Tomorrow

A coroner's inquest will be held Wednesday in Uniontown, Pa., in the case of William R. Durbin, 35, 810 Fairmont Avenue, Western Maryland Railway brakeman who was found shot to death Saturday in an alley in Connellsville, Pa., according to the Associated Press.

Police said they have taken no action against Donald C. Rutter, 37, who told officers he shot the man when he found him trying to climb into the Rutter's second story bedroom window.

Rutter said he and his wife were awakened by a prowler on a porch roof. Rutter said he fired two shots from a German Luger revolver and the man either climbed or fell from the roof.

Hearing moaning later in a nearby alley, Rutter said he went to a nearby home and called police.

Frank Kane, Fayette county, Pa., detective, said:

"It looks like an out-and-out case of justifiable homicide. As far as we know, no charges will be preferred."

Rites will be held tomorrow at 9 a.m. in St. Mary's Catholic Church. Interment will take place in Hillcrest Burial Park.

William McKaig Lodge No. 440, Brotherhood of Railroad Trainmen, held a service yesterday at 8:30 p.m. in the Hafer funeral home. Durbin was well known in labor circles and served for several years as chairman of the Western Maryland unit.

Durbin left here Friday on a run to Dickerson, Pa., four miles west of Connellsville. The train's conductor, Arthur C. Gaylord, 32, of Ridgeley, said they reached their destination at 9:41 p.m. and went to a nearby restaurant.

Later, Gaylord said, they returned to the caboose and went to bed since a return trip to Cumberland was scheduled at 6 a.m. yesterday. He was unaware of Durbin's death until police awakened him.

A veteran of World War II, Durbin was a son of William Ralph and Della Fishery Durbin. Survivors include his widow, the former Miss Hilda Smith; a three-year-old daughter, Joyce Rae, and two sisters, Mrs. Glenn Lee and Mrs. Mary Rice, this city.

Trooper Jack Browning, said the boys told him that Harold Young, 16, of Columbia Street, was pointing the rifle, which they believed to be unloaded, at Smith. Aptitude Tests Help Jobless Get Established In Careers

By FAY W. GUM
News Staff Writer

Job hunting just isn't what it used to be!

Not so long ago it was necessary for anyone who wanted to become established in a career to go through the sometimes disheartening routine of trying job after job until he found one for which he was best suited. He had little knowledge of his aptitude and ability and often spent months, or even years, in futile attempts to locate himself in his proper occupational niche.

Now, through a series of tests offered by the Maryland State Employment Service one can learn the type of work he can best handle in a matter of a few hours.

General Aptitude Tests

The tests, known as the General Aptitude Test Battery, are administered by one or more specialists at the local office. They are William B. Orndorff, Edward J. Wegman, Edward L. Matthews and William F. Aldridge.

The purpose of the battery is to classify persons tested so that prospective employers can hire individuals with known abilities rather than just hope the person hired will fit into the organization. Individuals and companies who have hired workers on the basis of the tests, report a high percentage of success.

Worker Learns Ability

Probably the most important result of the tests is that often the worker learns he has been seeking a career in a field in which he has little or no ability. His scores tell him what work he can most successfully follow. Applicants believe in the tests and many embark on lifetime careers on the strength of the results. Employment Service specialists stated.

The battery consists of 11 paper and pencil tests and four apparatus tests. It measures aptitudes in ten key classifications—general learning ability, verbal ability, numerical and spatial ability, form perception, clerical perception, hand-eye coordination, motor speed, finger dexterity, and manual dexterity.

Scores made in these categories are computed and translated so the job applicant's aptitude is determined in one or more of 20 major types of work. Each type is general and applies to many individual jobs requiring similar skills.

These general categories are creative writing, accounting, engineering, machining, mechanical repair, computing and recording, artistic drawing and arranging, electrical and radio repair, typing, stenographic work, typesetting and composing, engine and equipment repair, drafting, equipment and maintenance.

Delegate Slaps Handling Of Bill In Legislature

Whitworth Takes Issue With Byrd

Delegate Horace P. Whitworth, Jr., charged over the weekend that a bill to enlarge the powers of the University of Maryland Board of Regents was improperly handled in the House of Delegates.

The measure, calling for a constitutional amendment giving the board sweeping authority in the administration of the school, was introduced in the House Tuesday.

It was sent to the chamber's Education Committee.

"This bill deals with the framework of our Government," Whitworth said.

"It is the only bill dealing with a constitutional amendment that has been referred to any committee except the judiciary."

"This should have one there, too." Expressing strong opposition to the measure, Whitworth charged that it was drawn after the Board of Public Works withheld initial approval of a building already under construction at the Princess Anne branch of the university.

"It was the first time the Board of Public Works didn't do what Dr. H. C. Byrd wanted it do," Whitworth said. "That's the reason for this bill."

Whitworth also took issue with a statement made Friday by Dr. Byrd who declared the school was not "state-supported."

Dr. Byrd added that three fifths of the university's revenue "comes from the people who pay for the services" of the institution and its branches.

Cites Tax Levies

"Between 1936 and 1952 we'll have had to levy taxes on the people for $34,590,000 for the university," Whitworth said.

"Between 1936 and 1950, capital improvements for which the State has pledged its credit came to almost $16,000,000."

"That's State-supported, if you ask me," Whitworth declared.

Area Industrial Fund Drive Will Open This Week

Eiler Will Head Campaign Committee

The Cumberland and Allegany Industrial Promotion Company will open a drive here this week to raise $5,000 in cash and $10,000 in pledges to finance industrial development activities in this area, according to William C. Walsh, president.

The opening gun in the drive to meet obligations under a contract with Richardson Wood and Company, New York, will be held tomorrow at 6:30 p.m. in Central YMCA, when the campaign committee, headed by Frederic W. Eiler, meets to outline details of the drive.

Plans to raise the needed money and pledges were worked out by the company's finance committee, headed by Joseph M. Naughton.

Seek New Industries

The local Industrial Promotion Company was incorporated in the fall of 1949, and grew out of efforts of the Cumberland Industrial Promotion Committee appointed by the Mayor and City Council of Cumberland, and the Industrial Committee of the Chamber of Commerce to develop plans for securing new industries for this area. Howard M. Smith, former local superintendent.

In September 1950, Richardson Wood and Company, which specializes in industrial promotion and development, was employed to endeavor to secure new industries for Cumberland and Allegany County, at a fee of $10,000 for a six month period. This $10,000 was provided by the Mayor and City Council of Cumberland and the County Commissioners of Allegany County, in equal proportions, and as there was some question as to the legal authority of the City and County to contribute funds to the Industrial Promotion Company, the money was channeled through the Industrial Promotion Committee.

Legislation Expected

However, the present contract with Richardson Wood and Company has been made directly with the local Industrial Promotion Company, and legislation to enable the County and City to contribute money to this Company has been presented to the Legislature, and it is expected that this enabling legislation will be passed this week. It has already passed the House of Delegates and will be placed before the State Senate by Senator Kimble tonight.

Brought to police headquarters, where Gaffney and Detective Ernest Powell questioned them, the boys admitted they broke into the Scoreboard, 20 North Mechanic Street, where they got $38 after forcing a door, and Virginia's Beauty Shop, South Liberty Street, where they obtained only 20 cents after gaining entrance by use of a skeleton key. They will be held for Juvenile Court action.

Residents Ignore Wintry Blasts On Easter Day

Throngs Pay Homage To Risen Christ

Although Cumberlanders still felt the cold breath of Old Man Winter, who refused to believe that Spring is really here, most residents of this community ventured out in their new Easter finery yesterday.

Teen-age girls were just as stubborn as their elders in ignoring the weather as Winter was in refusing to bow out gracefully to Dame Spring.

Bright Colors

The typical bright Easter colors prevailed in the new suits, dresses and coats. Spring flowers in lovely corsages were present in abundance.

When the sun shone brightly during the afternoon hours, showing the downtown temperature to the day's high of 49 degrees, many young folks joined in the traditional "Easter Parade."

Many of the older women, being more practical than the youngsters, dressed in fur coats and other typical winter attire. Most of the men, those who had new spring suits, kept them pretty well hidden beneath their topcoats.

Church Attended

Although stress was given to new Easter clothes, most Cumberlanders also remembered the deeper spiritual significance of Easter as they crowded into the city's churches to sing "Hallelujahs" for the Resurrection of Jesus Christ.

Throngs of local residents showed their religious ardor by attending sunrise services.

"The very presence of this group here is ample proof that Christ has arisen," Rev. John Bayley Jones, pastor of First Methodist Church, Frostburg told an audience of about 700 at yesterday's Easter Sunrise Service in Fort Hill Auditorium.

Rev. Jones delivered the sermon at the service sponsored by the Cumberland Ministerial Association.

Building Permits Show Decrease

Builders in the Cumberland area spent a total of $46,650 on building permits during the month of February. This is a decrease over the same period of 1950 which shows $124,535 being spent.

The report figures issued by the research department of the Richmond Federal Reserve Bank show that for the first two month period in 1950, $156,245 was spent while the first two months in 1951 show a figure of $142,410.

Daniel W. Johnson, Jr., 647 Sedgewick Street, has been named to the honor roll at the University of Maryland. A graduate of Allegany High School and a veteran, Johnson is an education major in the senior class.

Today's Sermonette

By REV. SETH C. MORROW

Today's sermonette is a digest of the Easter sermon preached yesterday morning at First Presbyterian Church by the pastor, Rev. Seth C. Morrow. The sermon digests are being prepared through the cooperation of the Cumberland Ministerial Association.

The Easter Message

Before bringing you the Easter message may I give you my Easter greeting. May this day see God's sun shining in your sky, the sun of His redeeming, unfailing love. May it heal your hurt, comfort your sorrow, and bring you lasting peace. As this Easter day moves to a close may your life be filled with evidences of the risen Christ.

Though He is unseen now to mortal eyes, may your soul actually see Him today and may your greeting to Him be the word of believing Thomas, "My Lord, and My God."

Finally, when life's evening bell shall fall, may your acquaintance with the risen Lord keep your heart from being dismayed. May you say, "I shall live and not die, because He who died for me now lives."

All this, and nothing less, is my Easter wish for you.

And now the Easter message. Let us return again, to old Jerusalem nineteen hundred years ago.

At this point Rev. Mr. Morrow related in vividly descriptive language the Easter story, including Christ's last word on the cross, His burial and His resurrection to the point where Mary Magdalene brought to the disciples and the world the deathless message, "He is alive forevermore."

The climax of Mr. Morrow's message follows:

Christ is alive forevermore. Then our faith in God is never misplaced. We can trust His redeeming love and power.

Jesus lived an absolutely perfect life. He was crucified by sinful men, dead and buried. Is that all? God just let Him die on the Cross? Could you trust a God like that? But Christ is risen from the dead. God did not suffer His Holy One to see corruption. Not in vain did He say, (Continued on Page 9, Col. 6)

County Teachers May Be Given Job Preference

Minority Budget Report Is Issued

Delegate Lester B. Reed has introduced a bill which would give Allegany County residents and graduates of Frostburg State Teachers College priority for teaching positions in Allegany County public schools.

The legislation, introduced Friday and referred to the Education Committee of the House, provides that no person may be appointed as a principal or teacher in the public schools of this county unless he has been a resident of the county for five years or is a graduate of Frostburg State Teachers College.

Reed said the bill is being introduced to give county people a better chance to qualify for school posts. He added that provisions would be waived in times of national emergency.

Issues GOP Report

Delegate Horace P. Whitworth, Jr., Allegany County Republican, released over the weekend the minority party report on the budget for the fiscal year ending June 30, 1951. The report follows:

The report follows: The committee believes that one of the principal faults with the State of Maryland budget is found in the existing laws which permit the present methods of handling state finances. In support of this conclusion, the committee cites the fallacy of supplementary appropriations which distort the true picture of government expenditures. The factual budget is not present. Bond issue bills and supplementary appropriations, together with possible budget amendments, all must be considered together under the present system for one to have the correct financial picture in Maryland on the state's fiscal structure.

The minority report and subcommittee of the Ways and Means Committee recommends that a budget system be adopted which would embody the following principles:

1. Expenditure ceilings for all departments and functions with appropriations not to be exceeded, even though collections may amount to more than sums appropriated.

2. Accumulation of all unexpended appropriations and receipts in excess of revenue estimates as surplus to be applied to the requirements of the succeeding year.

3. The reduction in the number of special funds.

4. The elimination, as far as possible, of the supplementary appropriations and bond issue bills, and have one document covering all expenditures and purposes, including a complete capital fund budget for all public improvement acquisition financed by either bond issues or pay-as-you-go funds.

On Honor Roll

Daniel W. Johnson, Jr., 647 Sedgewick Street, has been named to the honor roll at the University of Maryland. A graduate of Allegany High School and a veteran, Johnson is an education major in the senior class.
